MR. O'CONOR'S DECLINATION.

His Reasons—Terse Letter on the Frauds—Necessity for United Action for Reform.

The following letter has been sent by Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR to the Committee of the Nineteenth Assembly District, giving his reasons for declining a nomination:

To Louis A. Rodenstein, Esq., Chairman, &c.:

MY DEAR SIR: The atrocious frauds now attracting universal notice were committed during the control of four persons over our local administration. The nature and measure of their guilt may, indeed, greatly vary in a moral point of view; but, nevertheless, those three of them who are still in possession of power are acting in perfect concert for mutual protection. They have evidently no scruple about means, and they are capable of accomplishing, by united effort, nearly all the mischief attainable by the four, had their union remained unbroken. One of these three, the Grand Sachem of Tammany, has been rightly enough denominated by his friends their Chief. The cant or classic designation of "Boss" or "Cæsar" is applied to him indifferently, according to the taste of the speaker, and each appropriately; for his bad preeminence, is indisputable. Since the secret abstraction of the vouchers, by which the precise details of the frauds committed might have been easily developed, no honest and intelligent citizen has doubted the guilt of this leader. Whether manifest proof could be brought home to him may have hitherto been a matter of speculation with some; but, in my judgment, the last lingering doubt on this point must now be removed from every fair mind. The recent developments made in connection with the regular acts and accounts of the Controller's office, and the Broadway Bank, in which the public moneys were deposited, must have had this effect.

The statutes which gave to this body of men its vast powers, were procured from Legislatures in which their chief sat as a law maker. It is boasted by some as a proof of his cleverness, indignantly asserted by others as manifesting his wickedness, and conceded by all, that these statutes were mainly procured by bribing our State Legislators with moneys rifled from the public Treasury. The precise cost of a vote in the horrible shambles where they were thus purchased, is almost as well known as the prices current of merchandise. One Senator's vote was of course as valuable as the votes of four Assemblymen.

In the face of these undeniable and publicly notorious facts, the chief before alluded to, with an audacity absolutely more impressive than his precedent crimes has presented himself as a candidate for Senator from the First City District, his name appearing at the head and front of the local ticket put in nomination by the triumvirate. And we are assured by their friends, that, upon the canvass, he will appear to have received a greater majority than ever has, at any former period, ushered him into the sacred seat of a Senator. Beyond any doubt, the intent and the power to realize this prophecy do both exist. For many, if not all, the other legislative districts of the City, adherents of this chief, more or less notorious as such, have been, or will be, put in nomination with like intent on the part of the corruptionists, and in many instances with equal power and facility of controlling results.

The legislative department of the commonwealth is its motive power. Its operation is like that of the vital current in a strong man's veins, it represents the impulses of the sovereign people, it is THE WILL OF THE STATE. A corrupt majority in our Legislature possesses vastly more power than the English Parliament. Few, feeble, and utterly inefficient against robbery of the public treasure, are the restraints of our fundamental law. Such a majority can render practically powerless the Judiciary and the Executive. The influence of the latter is singularly narrowed by our present Constitution. Fewer votes are required to overcome a veto than to adopt a law on its original passage. Hence the complete power of these our local governors. Every statute that a perverted ingenuity acting in the interests of intended fraud and rapine could devise, is to be found within the four thousand three hundred pages of legislation, mainly vicious or useless, issued at the last two sessions.

If these men can continue to control our State Legislature, their domination must remain unbridled, and in an amazingly short space of time every square foot of land in the City will be mortgaged to public creditors pretty nearly, if not quite, to its full value, for moneys raised on the public credit by our officials and mainly applied to the uses of themselves and their retainers.

On the other hand, if, for even a single year, a majority of incorruptible men could be elected to the Legislature, effectual measures of relief might be initiated. Such a beginning would be the dawn of a hope for our City and for the cherished institutions of our Republic.

The period is uncommonly favorable to a union of all good men for this purpose.

The offices to be filled on the State ticket at this time are not of vital importance. The Judicial elections in this City, whatever might be their result, could not materially affect the usefulness of our Judicial Courts. They are adequately officered independently of those Judges now to be chosen. Other local offices are only of pecuniary concern, and that in a degree quite insignificant when compared with the great public interests which are at stake. One Senator in Congress is the only political office which can be directly affected by the approaching election, and upon that it can have but a slight influence.

The State Senators about to be elected will, indeed, have a vote upon it; but they are few in number, and any party-majority existing in their body is always submerged in the greatly more numerous vote of the lower House. Those who are not ready to sacrifice public interests at the shrine of individual ambition will not, in the present connection, overlook the fact that no political or party interest of a general nature can be affected by our next election for United States Senator. Between the relative numbers ranged under the respective banners of the opposing political parties in the United States Senate, the difference is extreme. One added to or subtracted from either section would be an event of the most trivial consequence.

The just deduction from these facts is clear. Our honest fellow-citizens throughout the State ought certainly to lay aside all party interests and affiliations, "all businesses and excuses," and, with patriotic singleness of purpose, devote themselves at the ensuing election to the choice of sound law-givers as the only peaceful remedy for existing or impending evils.

In districts where the Republican Party have a decided majority, if a questionable candidate belonging to that party should be put in nomination, the honest Democrats of the district should decline to nominate anyone; and, acting as a balance of power, they should tender their undivided support to any honest Republican candidate. These same views should be applied and acted on conversely in districts clearly Democratic. Thus when a candidate of doubtful character was presented, he would generally find a respectable opponent supported by all good men in the district, without regard to any variance in their political sentiments. One public fact affords to a certain extent a convenient guide in the choice of candidates. The plan of local government embodied in the acts which constitute what is called the present New-York City Charter, does not conform to sound political principles, is, in all its leading features, manifestly repugnant to the views professed by each of the great parties, and has been found most pernicious in practice. It should be regarded as a sufficient objection to any candidate that he gave a vote in 1870 or 1871 favoring that legislation. Manifestly such persons should not be elected to seats in a body instructed to repeal it.

The proposals which have been made for my nomination in the Nineteenth Assembly District seem to have originated in views coinciding precisely with my own, as above stated; and consequently these proposals might well be deemed acceptable to me.

I was born in this City, and have resided in it all my life. The Nineteenth District was purely rural twenty-seven years ago, when it became my residence. It is mainly so still. Of course, I know it well, and am well known in it. If I should become a candidate, as proposed, I am perfectly certain that every honest elector in the district, whatever his political opinions, would vote for my ticket. I am also morally certain that if I have among them a single personal enemy, that enemy, as well as every other of his class, would not only cast his vote in my favor, but would earnestly strive for my election. Under these circumstances one might fairly think that it would be almost, if not entirely unanimous; and, indeed, it is absolutely certain that scarcely a hundredth part of the suffrage would be cast against me, excluding votes extorted by the threat and dread of starvation, from that very class between whom and myself there exist the strongest ties of affection and respect. A thousand or more workmen, born in the green isle of my ancestors, who live in the district, are in public employment, and depend on the continuance of that employment for the support of themselves and their families during the long Winter now approaching. These poor men may mistakenly suppose that the power of dismissing or retaining them remains and will remain in the hands of the corruptionist who might be my rival. Hounded to the poll and closely watched by political hirelings, these men might, to some extent, be compelled to vote against me; and, under color of the vote thus cast, a false count by inspectors selected to perform the knavish deed, could prevent my return. I have the most thorough conviction that an enormous majority will be certified for TWEED in this way. It is possible that the facilities for such villainy are less in our rural districts than in the City proper; it is possible that the infamy to result from defeating, in this way, a candidate so well known as myself might deter, but it is only through the operation of causes like these that the triumvirate could be prevented from returning their candidate, whoever he might be, or however stained with notorious moral and political delinquency.

Viewing your proposals in this light, and before looking further, I was induced to think that I ought to accept the nomination. If elected, I supposed I could serve you faithfully and diligently; if defeated, the opprobrium now resting upon your opponents would be intensified. Neither discredit to myself personally, nor honor to my rival, could result, in any event.

Other considerations, however, demanded attention; they have received it, and the result is that I cannot consent to become a candidate. I will briefly state my reasons.

In the first place, I am likely to find full occupation for all my time and my utmost powers in the Attorney-General's legal proceedings against the robbers who, not content with their already realized gains, are now thundering at the gates of the Treasury, and are determined to continue their iniquitous career through the agency of fraudulent canvassing and corrupt legislation.

Secondly, the position in which, without my own seeking, I am placed, as the adviser and prosecutor of these proceedings, demands that I should be exempt from even the color of any personal interest. Events will show incontestably my perfect disinterestedness in all that I have done or may do for the public in this position. Neither power, profit or patronage of any kind has resulted, or will result, to me. However inapt the suggestion, some honorable persons might think that a seat in the Assembly had temptations to my pride or ambition, or that it was sought as a stepping-stone to higher distinctions. Even this feeble and unfounded argument should not be afforded color. I have, therefore, determined to decline candidacy for this or any other office. Unless the Republic is irretrievably doomed to perdition, there are other honest men in sufficient numbers and of competent ability to fill all its offices. Whatever of knowledge, skill and judgment in law, in legislation, or in any department of human effort, I may possess, are, and while life lasts will be, at my country's service, and can be employed by me in a private station with equal, if not greater, advantage to the public, than in any office.

If the people should elect an honest Legislature, my best efforts will be at its command. A seat as a legislator is not necessary to this purpose. If already purchased candidates should be returned, and form the majority, no good law could be obtained by any human means.

Whatever may be done in this City by that false canvassing which is the last diabolical resort of official villainy, it may yet be hoped that an honest majority of the country members will begin the session by determining the right to contested seats. And, if need there shall be, the corrupt returns of the New-York City triumvirate may be passed upon together as presenting a single question. This trial of the conspirators together, on one indictment, would prevent them from voting each for the others, and, if truth and justice should demand it, would, in the result, involve them in a conviction for their common crime, and a consequent common rejection.

I am, dear Sir, with great respect,
Yours truly, CH. O'CONOR.

INGERSOLL'S FLIGHT.

What His Relatives and Friends Say About it—Speculations as to the Probability of His Return.

JAMES H. INGERSOLL closed his house, No. 556 Fifth-avenue, and left New-York one day last week "on business," say his friends, and they stoutly maintain that he will be back in a few days to take his place beside TWEED in the proceedings instituted against them, and submit meekly to a speedy "vindication." Tammanyites and those of everlasting faith in TWEED and his coadjutors laugh to scorn the idea that either INGERSOLL, GARVEY or WOODWARD have deserted New-York for a lengthened stay. They contend that all these gentlemen had urgent business out of town, and very properly went to attend to it; but that they are remaining away for the purpose of avoiding arrest is treated as an exquisite joke.

To ascertain something definite about his plans a TIMES reporter visited the residence of JAMES H. INGERSOLL, yesterday afternoon. The house looked deserted, the shades were pulled down, and there was no indication of life inside. The reporter's repeated rings at the bell elicited no response, whereupon he attacked the basement door, which was at length opened by one of the servants. Mr. and Mrs. INGERSOLL were out of town, she said. They left last Wednesday. Where they had gone she had no idea, and when they would return she had still less. Mrs. INGERSOLL might return today, but when Mr. INGERSOLL might be expected, she could not say. The house was looked up, that she admitted, and "the folks" might be gone some time.

In the evening the reporter called upon Mr. LORIN INGERSOLL, the father of JAMES H., at his residence in Twenty-first-street. "It is reported that your son has left the City, Mr. INGERSOLL," said the reporter, "and I have called to ask you about him. Is it true that he has gone away?"

INGERSOLL—Yes, he has.

REPORTER—When did he go?

INGERSOLL—Last Friday. (The servant had said last Wednesday.)

REPORTER—When do you expect him back?

INGERSOLL—I don't know. During the week some time.

REPORTER—Will you tell me where he has gone?

INGERSOLL—Well, I think he went East.

REPORTER—Yes? To Portland, for instance?

INGERSOLL—Portland! Yes; oh, yes. He went to Portland. Went on Friday.

REPORTER—Why did he go?

INGERSOLL—Why did he go? Why, he had business there, I suppose. Yes, he had business there.

REPORTER—His wife went with him, I presume?

INGERSOLL—His wife! Oh! Yes, his wife! She always goes with him.

REPORTER—Did he know that there was an order issued for his arrest?

INGERSOLL—He knew all about that.

REPORTER—I suppose you have heard of Mr TWEED'S arrest?

INGERSOLL—I was present when he was arrested.

REPORTER—TWEED was sharp. He expected it, and had his bail ready.

INGERSOLL—Of course he did. He didn't intend to be taken from his office.

REPORTER—Of course not. Who will go bail for your son?

INGERSOLL—Well, we haven't made any preparation for that yet.

REPORTER—No?

INGERSOLL—Oh, well, that is, you know, his father-in-law and I will go bail for him, and there will be some others, of course; there are two or three others who will go bail with us, of course. Oh! that will be all right. Has the Sheriff got the order yet?

REPORTER—I understand so.

INGERSOLL—Well, he hasn't been to the store. Nobody has been there. By the way, who wrote that article in today's TIMES?

REPORTER—I did, Sir.

INGERSOLL—Who told you my son was away? A man with a harr-lip?

REPORTER—Yes.

INGERSOLL—That is JOHN WATSON—WATSON'S son. I told the book-keeper to tell any one who called that JAMES was out.

REPORTER—Can you state definitely what day your son will return?

INGERSOLL—Well, I guess about Wednesday.

REPORTER—I will call on him then.

INGERSOLL—What for?

REPORTER—Oh, to chat with him.

INGERSOLL—It won't be worth while; he has nothing to say.

REPORTER—You are not certain that he will be back on Wednesday.

INGERSOLL—Oh, no, of course not. The last time he went East he was only gone one day, and didn't transact half his business; he may stay longer this time. He isn't going to run away. TWEED says he will be back, and he will.

REPORTER—How about GARVEY and WOODWARD?

INGERSOLL—I saw WOODWARD a week ago; he is coming back too. I heard from him the other day, and GARVEY will be back. Why, I see JOHN GARVEY every day. Nobody is going to run.

REPORTER—Who will defend your son in this suit?

INGERSOLL—Oh! Well, TWEED'S lawyers, I guess. Why, JAMES can't go. O'GORMAN has sued him.

REPORTER—Well, I don't think that need give him much uneasiness. That suit don't amount to much.

INGERSOLL—Oh, yes, it does. O'GORMAN has sued him, and I think that O'GORMAN will get in a muddle with O'CONOR, don't you?

REPORTER—There may be something in that, after all.

INGERSOLL—Of course there is. O'GORMAN will get in a muddle with O'CONOR, and O'CONOR must look out for himself.

REPORTER—That's so.

INGERSOLL—When will that trial come off?

REPORTER—I don't know. Not before your son gets back, if he is coming Wednesday.

INGERSOLL—Oh! Well, he'll come.

"What do you think about it?" asked the reporter of a prominent reformer, who had listened laughingly while the reporter told him the details of the conversation with INGERSOLL. "Do you believe he will ever turn up again?" "Not he," was the rejoinder, "unless TWEED sends for him. TWEED knows where all these fellows are; they are his tools and do just what he says. Why, he no more dare have INGERSOLL around than his worst enemy. It would ruin him. If TWEED wants any of that gang he'll send for them, but they won't show their heads till he does." And this is the opinion prevalent all over the City. The publication in yesterday's TIMES of the rumored flight of INGERSOLL created almost as much excitement as the arrest of TWEED. Wherever men met the question was discussed, and almost every one professed to see the hand of TWEED in INGERSOLL'S absence. "TWEED was not so much surprised as he made out to be when that TIMES reporter told him that INGERSOLL had gone," said a gentleman, "he was astonished that it had been found out so quick. He wanted INGERSOLL to get a good start. Why, INGERSOLL couldn't stand the fire of a cross-examination five minutes. Look here: he gave WOODWARD $4,000,000 to pay TWEED $1,000,000 advances; why did he give him so much? Who was the rest intended to pay? Who else had advanced him money? All these things must come out." "TWEED has disposed of the main witnesses against him, that's true," said another gentleman; "still there is incontrovertible evidence of his crimes; how will he get along with that?" "Pack the jury, as HALL did," responded the first. "It will cost him a pile of money, and that is what makes him so cross; but he will have to do it."

In the larger hotels and restaurants where men congregate the absence of INGERSOLL absorbed the conversation. "TWEED says he will come back, and he ought to know," urged one. "Of course he does," sneered another, "and he will come back if TWEED tells him to, but not otherwise." Quoth a stock broker in the Fifth-avenue Hotel, "INGERSOLL has walked off on his ear, and struck dead lame so he can't get home till TWEED gets hold of that ear." "The friends of TWEED'S youth are getting scattered somewhat, aren't they?" remarked another. "Yes," replied his companion; "INGERSOLL, GARVEY, and WOODWARD gone—next?" "I wonder how many square feet of friends TWEED has got left," ejaculated an inquiring spirit. "Just as many as he has got dollars," returned a man with a mathematical turn; "you can buy such friends as his at one hundred cents per square foot."

Rumor and comment were rife throughout the whole day and evening. Many remarked upon the news joocosely. Others saw the flounderings of a caged and desperate man. All concurred in the belief that INGERSOLL had left New-York without the intention of returning, and if he should come back on Wednesday he will agreeably disappoint the majority of the community.

Peter B. Sweeny's Hand in the Frauds.

The public should not forget a certain little transaction of Mr. PETER B. SWEENY'S, in which the City of New-York was swindled by him out of $30,000, by means of antedating a lease of the Thirty-fourth-street Armory. Now that some people are prating about the honesty of this man, the story, as we told it nearly two months ago, is worth reproducing. It is only a sample of the many tricks in which he has been engaged. It appears that Mr. SWEENY purchased some property on Broadway, between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets, and rented the store, corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth-street, to the Messrs. GEERY at $10,000 per annum. A large room above the store and another large room in the rear, and not accessible from the street, with some small rooms forming an L on Thirty-third-street, could not be made available for business purposes, and were not fit for dwellings. They must have remained unoccupied, had it not been that the Board of Supervisors kindly came to the rescue, and rented these rooms at $30,000 a year, antedating the lease, as in the case of Tammany Hall, and paying a year's rent for the rooms before they were occupied. In order to afford a pretext for fitting up these rooms, the Twelfth Regiment and the Washington Grey troop of cavalry were notified that they were to occupy them; although the Twelfth were already provided with an armory, corner of Broadway and Fourth-street, for which the City pays $11,000 a year, and the Washington Greys (which muster only twenty men on the most important occasion) were similarly provided for, corner of Greene and Houston streets, for which the City pays $4,000 a year—the lease in both cases having several years to run. Like his distinguished colleague TWEED, SWEENY has his aliases and go-betweens. In the present instance, however, he does not use the name of Peter Grease, as he has on other occasions, but contents himself with putting forward one of the Smith family—HENRY A. SMITH, of No. 1,290 Broadway—who receives two checks for $3,750 each quarter, as one check for $7,500 in the name of PETER B. SWEENY might attract attention and provoke unfavorable comments.

The Work of the Bureau of Municipal Correction.

The statement of KEYSER laid the foundation for the arrest of TWEED. Acting upon information furnished by him, the members of the Bureau of Municipal Correction traced TWEED'S villainy home to him and reared a mountain of facts that overtowers his strongest retreat.

KEYSER accompanied SAMUEL J. TILDEN, WHEELER H. PECKHAM and Gen. BARLOW to the Controller's office and pointed out the vouchers that had been forged. Then the propriety of attacking the Broadway Bank and compelling the repayment of the money drawn on the forged vouchers was discussed. The bank was clearly liable, and PALMER, the President, was sent for. He was told how matters stood, and immediately offered to turn over the books and accounts of the bank for investigation, and SAMUEL J. TILDEN went to work at them. Two weeks were consumed by him in obtaining the material and preparing his report. In the meantime Mr. O'CONOR, Mr. EVARTS, Mr. PECKHAM and Judge EMOTT were engaged in collecting affidavits and any testimony they might deem material. When this and the examination of the bank books were completed, the task of reducing the mass to an intelligible complaint and proper documents to procure the order of arrest, was undertaken and successfully accomplished.

All this involved incessant labor, and required the attention of those engaged to the exclusion of all other business, and too much credit for the fidelity with which they devoted their time to the work before them cannot be given to these men, who have shown an honest interest in the welfare of our unfortunate City.

Tweed to Settle the Keyser Suit.

The TIMES has heretofore chronicled the fact that JACKSON S. SCHULTZ, as assignee of KEYSER, has commenced a suit against WM. M. TWEED for work, labor and services rendered upon material furnished to TWEED'S houses, &c. The amount claimed is $12,000. TWEED'S only defense is that KEYSER agreed to do this work in consideration of receiving contracts from the City, and as the contracts have been given to him he had been paid in full. TWEED, imprudent as he is, dared not set up his own rascality as a defence, and has concluded, we learn from the best authority, to pay the money down and get out of the affair as quietly as he can. This will probably be done this week, and TWEED will contemplate some of his property with the proud satisfaction of knowing that he paid a little for it, no matter where he got the money.

Horatio Seymour Nominated for Assembly.

A meeting of the Democratic Reform Convention of the Nineteenth Assembly District was held Saturday, at the office of J. MANSFIELD DAVIS, No. 5 Pine-street, to nominate a candidate in place of Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR. Mr. JOHN E. DEVELIN was Chairman and Mr. JAMES A. DEERING Secretary. The Secretary read a letter from Mr. O'CONOR declining the nomination.

Mr. O'CONOR having suggested the name of Mr. HORATIO SEYMOUR, assuring the Committee that Mr. SEYMOUR would accept the place if elected, Mr. DEERING moved the nomination of the Ex-Governor. He was unanimously nominated. Subcommittees having then been appointed the meeting adjourned.

The duties which Mr. O'CONOR has assumed at the request of the Attorney-General demand all his time, and would leave him no opportunity for attention to legislative duties. We regret that we cannot have so honorable and pure a representative in our Legislature. If elected, Mr. SEYMOUR, we are assured from undoubted authority, will take his seat in the Assembly, and do all in his power to relieve the thief-ridden people of this suffering City. That such men as Mr. SEYMOUR are willing to serve is a cheering sign of the times, and shows the great emergency which exists.

Register Without Delay.

The idea prevalent among our citizens that, because they were registered last year, it is unnecessary for them to register again for the next election, is calculated to inflict great injury on the cause of reform.

Although it is possible to register upon the day of election, it can only be done by the voter making an affidavit "as to the cause of his failure to register," and it is only in case "the excuse be deemed sufficient by a majority of the inspectors" that "he shall be permitted to vote, the same as if his name was registered." As the "majority of the inspectors" are, in all cases, in the interest of Tammany, it is apparent that they are not likely to deem any excuse sufficient, unless offered by a person likely to vote for the friends of the Ring. It is, therefore, indispensable that all citizens opposed to TWEED & Co. should appear personally before the registers "on the Wednesday, Friday and Saturday preceding the election," and see that their names are enrolled. The fact of their having been enrolled or having voted last year is of no importance. Every man opposed to the Ring who desires to vote at this election must appear personally and register this year as if no change in the law had been made. The only alteration that has been made in the law is not for their benefit but for that of the repeaters of the Ring.

The Selections of the Committee of Seventy for the County Ticket.

The Committee of Seventy has selected the gentlemen whose names are given below, from the nominees of the various political and reform organizations opposed to Tammany Hall, and presents them to the public to be voted for to fill the respective positions designated:

For Justice of the Supreme Court, GEORGE C. BARRETT.

For Justices of the Superior Court, WM. E. CURTIS, JOHN SEDGWICK.

For Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, CHARLES P. DALY.

For Judge of the Marine Court, ALEXANDER SPAULDING.

For Register, FRANZ SIGEL.

For Aldermen, John Wheeler, Samuel B. H. Vance, Eugene Kelly, William Radde, Alexander Wilder, Isaac Bernheimer, John Foley, Oscar Zollicoffer, George W. Varian, John Falconer, Joseph C. Jackson, Solomon Mehrbach, Gustavus W. Faber, George Burkhardt, Peter Gilsey.

The Committee invite the citizens of New-York to meet them at the Cooper Institute on Thursday evening, Nov. 2, at 8 o'clock, to receive a report of their proceedings and hear their views on the duty of citizens in the coming election.

Committee of Seventy Senatorial Nominations.

The Committee of Seventy, at their conference on Saturday evening, made the following Senatorial nominations:

Fourth District—Jeremiah O'Donovan Rossa.
Fifth District—Erastus C. Benedict.
Sixth District—Dr. Augustus Weissman.
Seventh District—James O'Brien.
Eighth District—Daniel F. Tieman.

Rossa Nominated for State Senator—His Acceptance.

At a Convention of the Reform Democracy, held at the Vanderbilt House, corner of Hudson and Hubert streets, Saturday evening, J. O'DONVAN ROSSA was unanimously nominated for Senator for the Fourth Senatorial District. The following is his letter of acceptance:

To Messrs. Eugene O'Shea, Mathew Stewart Wm. J. Porter, Wm. O. Cloyes, Adolphus Borst, J. F. Costello, Richard O'Keefe and De Witt Beardsley, Committee:

GENTLEMEN: I thank you and the gentlemen of the Fourth Senatorial District Convention, and the citizens whom they represent, for the support given me last night by the indorsement or nomination for Senator. I accept it, as I have accepted the nomination from the Reform Party, and I make to you the same promise I made to them—that the money of Mr. TWEED or the money of all the frauds of New-York City will not buy me out till the votes of the citizens decide between me and the rich man, on the 7th of November. From what I see of our people, I believe they are more inclined to vote for honest men than for rogues, and if you and the Reform Democracy have the power to secure a fair count and fair play at the next election, you will see that the nominees of this party that has brought disgrace upon the City of New-York will be in a minority; that is, if all who oppose them are in earnest and incorruptible, for the corrupting influences are yet in circulation. I will ask no man to vote for me who is in the pay of Tammany, but we have more men earning an independent livelihood than are dependent upon the Ring, and it is to this majority I will appeal.

Yours very respectfully,
JER. O'DONOVAN ROSSA.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 29, 1871.

Ledwith's Acceptance of the Tammany Nomination.

The following is Judge LEDWITH'S letter accepting the Tammany nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court:

TO THE CHAIRMAN, &c.—Sir: I have considered with great care the nomination you have tendered me. I have sought the counsels of men who have been early and earnest friends of municipal reform, and as your organization is composed of a body of men known for years for their zealous advocates of reform, I have come to the conclusion to assent to the use of my name as a candidate for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court. I do this more readily because you know well my antecedents, and that in your hands my reputation is safe, and that my character will not suffer for want of able defenders. I need not assure you that my sentiments are unchanged, and that I shall continue to do battle for honest government in the future, as in the past, in whatever position the people of this City honor me with. With great respect, I am truly yours,
NEW-YORK, Oct. 28. THOMAS A. LEDWITH.

OHIO.

The Complete Official Returns by Counties of the Vote for Governor at the Late Election—The Constitutional Convention.

Below is given the official vote of Ohio for Governor at the election held on the second Tuesday of October, as ascertained at the office of the Secretary of State. The Prohibition candidate for Governor received in all 4,085 votes. Gen. NOYES, the Republican candidate, received 238,194 votes, and Col. MCCOOK, the Democratic candidate, 218,105; Republican majority, 20,089. The total vote for Governor is 460,384, an increase over the vote for Secretary of State last year of 31,297. Last year the Republican majority was 17,194; the increase is 2,895. The following is the vote:

There were 266,668 votes cast in favor of holding a convention to revise the Constitution of the State, and 160,412 against it. It requires a majority of all the votes cast at the election to carry the Convention. As appears from the foregoing figures, there were 207,080 affirmative and negative votes cast, and 460,384 for Governor; 93,304 of the voters who cast ballots for Governor making no expression on the Convention. They are nevertheless counted against it. Substracting the affirmative vote from the total vote on Governor, we find the negative vote to be 193,716, leaving a majority for the Convention of 72,962.

THE DEMOCRATIC DILEMMA.

Another Plea for the Passive Policy—What it Means and What its Objects Are.

From the St. Louis Republican, Oct. 21.

* * * But it is objected that if the Democracy decline to contest the next Presidency, they would, by that act, surrender their principles and disband as a party. The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle & Sentinel expresses the fear that "the course suggested by the Missouri Republican will lead to the total abandonment of the only constitutional party in the country, and will but encourage the Radicals to a more precipitate change in the form of government." In Missouri, Virginia and Tennessee, where the very passive policy we suggest has been tried with the happiest success, and where it has modified, but at the same time materially compacted and strengthened the constitutional party, this apprehension has no weight. There must and will be a constitutional party in this country as long as there is a Constitution to plead for and defend, and to imagine that the Democracy would forfeit its right to exist by a single refusal to enter a field where defeat is predestined is to impute to it a lack of constitutional spirit and coherency. Can the Democracy live only by being defeated? Must it always fight and be always beaten in order to vindicate its principles and vitality? Can a great patriotic party perish through a single act of patriotic self-sacrifice? Would that be an act of cowardice and humiliation on the part of the Democracy which should effect the mighty deliverance of Georgia from the hard fate of a constantly menaced new reconstruction, relieve South Carolina from the pains of martial law, restore to the silent South its voice in Congress, vindicate the supremacy of the Constitution, and give to the whole country that serene and fraternal concord which the passive policy gave to Missouri? If it would, then it is a fair question whether the Democracy should not be willing to perish to achieve such majestic results.

Let us suppose that this proposition be submitted to a regularly called National Democratic Convention, called in 1872—and no less august body ought to assume to decide it. If that body should reject it, and resolve to contest the Presidency with a Democratic ticket, that would end the discussion. We would acquiesce in the decision, and support the ticket with what strength we might be able to bring to the task—not, however, without the conviction that it would be the last Democratic Presidential ticket that would ever be put in the field. If, on the contrary, the Convention should decide not to contest the Presidency, but leave that work to whomsoever might make opposition to Gen. GRANT, it should solemnly and in perfect good faith announce the fact, elect the usual National Executive Committee, and adjourn. The coherency which Democratic opposition gives to the Republican Party would be immediately destroyed, and the powerful element of opposition to GRANT in that party would take form as the aggressive party of the hour, and leader in the contest, supplemented and reinforced where it is weak by a compact and irresistible reserve of Democrats. If the Republican opposition to GRANT and the popular discontent with the policy of martial law, high tariff, personal government, and civil service corruption is as great as all fair signs seem to indicate, there would be no doubt about the issue of such a contest. A Liberal Republican, whoever he might be, would be chosen President by a majority so overwhelming that it would not be safe to defy it; a majority of Democrats and Liberals, united by the memory of a common struggle and a common triumph, would be elected to Congress: the policy of martial law would be overthrown forever, and we would have a return of the Monroe "era of good feeling." The withdrawal of the Democracy from the Presidential canvass would not affect its conduct in other contests, for the Democracy is not a central party to be destroyed by the momentary inaction of its National Central Committee. The party in each State, Congressional district, city, town and county, would conduct their local contests as now, but with the increased influence and spirit which their abstinence from the Presidential field necessarily would give, and whether, after the battle was over, the result should be a Democratic victory or a Liberal Republican victory, there would be no question of its being an Administration Party defeat, and that fact would more than content the victorious allies.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Hon. ELLIS H. ROBERTS, of Utica, addressed a large and spirited Republican meeting at Pen Yan, on Friday evening last.

The Democrats of the two districts of Cattaraugus County have nominated CHARLES S. CAREY and STEPHEN LAING for Assembly.

The Prohibitionists of Boston will nominate their candidates for the Legislature and local officers on Wednesday evening.

The Republicans of the First District of Niagara County have nominated ISAAC H. BABCOCK for Assembly.

The Democrats of Wyoming have nominated JOHN B. FOLSOM, and the Democrats of Schenectady P. RILEY TOLL for Assembly.

A special from Austin, Texas, says that the certificate of election is withheld from CLARKE. It is understood the whole matter will be referred to Washington.

The St. Louis Democrat confidently predicts President GRANT'S re-election in 1872 by a majority more overwhelming than he received in 1868.

The Mobile Register reiterates its declaration that the Democracy would deserve to fail in 1872 if they should adopt the principles of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

The Democrats of the Eleventh District will vote for HOMER A. NELSON for Senator, notwithstanding his letter refusing to accept the nomination.

It is believed that there will be several changes in the Massachusetts Congressional delegation next year. BUTLER, BANKS, DAWES and HOAR, however, will probably be returned.

The revelations of the Tammany frauds are reducing even the number of candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Connecticut.

The Democrats of Erie County have completed their nominations for Assembly by nominating JOHN HOWELL in the Second District and OSCAR FOLSOM in the Third District.

The Labor Reformers of Rochester have nominated ELIAS MAPES for Senator, (he receiving

AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

Sympathy for Chicago—Kinder Sentiment Toward America—Socialist Agitation and Growth of the International—The Society in London—A Singular Combination—The Recent Strikes.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 14, 1871.

The news of the terrible disaster at Chicago has caused a deep and general feeling of sympathy and commiseration for the unfortunate inhabitants of that city, and no time has been lost in giving practical and substantial expression to this sentiment. As you will have already heard, the Lord Mayor summoned a meeting at the Mansion House on Wednesday afternoon, and £10,000 was quickly subscribed for the relief of the sufferers. This sum has since been nearly doubled, and the Corporation has voted £1,000. At Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Bradford, Edinburgh and Dublin subscriptions have also been opened. It is probable that up to this evening about £40,000 in all has been collected, exclusive of the contributions of Americans in response to Gen. SCHENCK'S invitation. There has been a heartiness and spontaneity about this movement which fully bears out all I have previously said about the strong personal regard which is entertained for the people of the United States in this country. This feeling has been fostered not only by a better acquaintance with American men and institutions, but also by the gradual assimilation of the political temper of the two nations and by a sense of the moral loneliness and isolation in which England stands with regard to the other States in Europe. It is not a military alliance that is wanted, but an alliance of sympathetic policy and moral support. In free trade, in domestic government, in social organization, and, above all, in an enlightened foreign policy, England is far ahead of the other Powers. It is true that she has not settled down into very clear views on some of these matters—non-intervention, for example—but the very confusion and embarrassment in this respect, as compared with the Continental countries, are in fact owing to the progress already made. If the people are more distressed by certain questions than some of their neighbors, that is not because they have succeeded in solving them, but only because the fermentation has begun here and has still to come in the other case. Under these circumstances it is with a kind of yearning that Englishmen turn from Europe and look across the Atlantic for sympathy and appreciation. The ties between the two nations are continually becoming stronger, their political sentiments are, as I have said, gradually assimilating, and I am confident that a great and beneficent alliance between them is preparing for the future—beneficent alike for themselves and for the world. If it had been any other place in the States than Chicago which had suffered I have no doubt the subscriptions would have been equally ready; but there is certainly a peculiarly warm place in the British heart for the "Garden City." Men here rather flatter themselves with the thought, I fancy, that they have had a share in the development of that marvelous community. British free trade has done something for Chicago, and Chicago has certainly done much for them. If it had not been for Chicago and the plenteous plains of the North-west, England's experiment in free trade might, in the first instance, have turned out less auspiciously. In one of his speeches on the subject, the late Sir ROBERT PEEL prophesied that under the operation of the new system Chicago and Milwaukee would, before long, rival Dantzic and Odessa as the great granaries of the world. JOSEPH HUME, the economist, who had been over a great part of the globe and prided himself on his geography, was nonplussed by the unfamiliar names. He turned to Mr. ELLICE—"Bear" ELLICE, as he was called, partly from his connection with the Hudson's Bay Company and partly from his own shaggy mien—for information, but Mr. ELLICE was equally at fault—Chicago and Milwaukee had never been heard of before, though now as well known as any English towns. Again, in 1864 Mr. COBDEN, in a memorable speech, complained of the ignorance of American geography which prevailed at Oxford and Cambridge. He undertakes to say that not one undergraduate in a hundred could put his finger within a thousand miles of Chicago on the map; yet Chicago was a place of 150,000 inhabitants, (it has doubled since then!) from which one or two millions of people in England were annually fed. It was absurd, he thought, that young gentlemen assuming to have had a good education should know all about the Illesas, a paltry little pool, dammed up by Athenian laundresses for washing purposes, and should know nothing of the geography of the great Mississippi. It may be presumed that the undergraduates have looked up Chicago by this time.

SOCIALIST COMMOTION.

I learn from a well-informed French print that the International Association is making good progress in the British Empire, that the dispossessed native Princes of India have agreed to make common cause with the Fenians and Ribbonmen of Ireland. A good number of discontented officers in the army and navy, as well as several members of Parliament, are also affiliated to it. The Government, it seems, is well aware of the infernal plan by which, at a given signal, the public buildings of London are to be "petroleused." So far advanced are their designs, that boats are already waiting in the Thames to receive the treasures of the Bank of England—"an easy prey," say the conspirators, as soon as the main artery of the Strand shall have been burnt down and the barracks blown up. All this I read in the Diplomatic Courier of Paris. A diplomatist, of course, is bound to know everything, and may be trusted to be very cautious in his expressions. There is one point, however, on which I venture to think he is mistaken. I believe the Government is not aware of this plot, and that in fact nobody in this country knows anything of it. Of course it is the business of the International Association to magnify its importance and to keep itself before the world, for the sake of getting subscriptions and making dupes. These are the familiar tactics of the Fenians. A number of foreign refugees now in London make their living out of these agitations and the frauds connected with them. I think it very likely that people here may find the International very troublesome one of these days because of the freedom it enjoys over here, but for the very same reason, there is no country in the world (except the United States) where it is less dangerous. In the absence of the repressive treatment to which it is subjected abroad, the International in a free country blows itself away in harmless steam. The safety-valves are in good order in the English political system, and there is nobody to sit on them.

THE INTERNATIONAL IN LONDON.

The mischief of the International is that it forms a nucleus of revolutionary experts, and that it lends its advice and organization readily to all kinds of social and political disorder. It is announced that it is prepared to support the Irish home rule movement, which is either empty and meaningless bluster or our old friend repeal under a new name. I hope this is true, for it will help to weaken still further the already waning influence of the International over the English trade-unions which it had acquired by flattering and affiliating with the chief officials and wire-pullers of these bodies in London, but which it is now losing because these men see that Dr. MARX wants to use them as his tools and usurp their authority. In another letter I hope to be able to give you some curious information about the personnel of this Society. Meanwhile, I may mention that the Central Committee of the Association held a meeting in London last month. It was to be a secret meeting, or rather series of meetings, but somehow reports of the proceedings have got abroad. In order to baffle the Police, who were not troubling themselves in the least about the matter, the conspirators put themselves to the unnecessary trouble of repeatedly changing their rendezvous from one public house to another. There were present three German deputies, two Swiss, five Belgians, seven Frenchmen, four Englishmen, one Spaniard, one Irishman, one Hungarian, one Italian, and one Russian. Dr. KARL MARX presided, and took the opportunity of reporting on MAZZINI for his denunciation of the International Association. Two of a trade never agree. After pouring out the vials of his wrath on the head of the great Italian conspirator, Dr. MARX brought his invective to a climax by accusing MAZZINI of the ridiculous weakness of believing in God! There was some warm debate as to whether the International should meddle with politics or confine itself to social questions. Dr. MARX insisted that social difficulties could only be settled by political influence, and that political influence could only be obtained by political agitation. Hitherto, he said, power had been vested in capitalists and landed proprietors; to take it from them was the proper task of working men, and this could only be effected by the acquisition of political power. These arguments carried the day, and political propagandism was therefore resolved upon. The sittings lasted nine days and wound up with a banquet. It is not stated whether the Internationalists confined their orgies to cigarettes and cold water, like DISRAELI'S conspirators in Lothair.

A STRANGE PLOT—LORDS AND SOCIALISTS.

Within the last few days some of the Ministerial prints have been making much about an alleged conspiracy which is said to have been hatching between certain Conservative noblemen and a number of Unionist delegates and Democratic agitators, with a view to form a political alliance. The story, as it first appeared in a highly sensational form, ran thus: Last January Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL applied, on behalf of a number of Conservative Peers, whose names were not, however, given, to Mr. ALLAN, the Secretary of the Society of Engineers, for a statement of the social and political reforms desired by the working classes, in order to see whether co-operation might not be possible. Mr. ALLAN, who was rather shy and suspicious at first, fearing that the information was sought for only to be used for hostile purposes, was at length convinced of the good faith of the negotiators, and after consultation with some of the other leaders of the working men, drew up a rough draft of their views. In the first instance, this document was submitted to several supporters of the Government in the House of Commons, as well as the House of Lords, but was very coldly received. The Liberals held that however desirable the various measures for bettering the condition of the working classes might be, they were not fit subjects for legislation. But the Conservatives snapped at the bait. The Marquis of SALISBURY, Earl of CARNARVON, (the two Peers who seceded from Mr. DISRAELI on account of his Reform bill,) Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE, Mr. GATHORNE HARDY, Lord JOHN MANNERS, Lord HENRY LENNOX and Sir JOHN PAKINGTON, all members of the late Conservative Government, signed their names, while Mr. DISRAELI, Lord DERBY and the Duke of RICHMOND gave a private adhesion to the following document, to which a number of representative working men also appended their signatures:

1. To rescue the families of our workmen from the dismal lanes, crowded alleys, and unwholesome dwellings of our towns and plant them out in the clear; where, in the middle of a garden, in a detached homestead, in wholesome air and sunshine, they may live and grow up, strong, healthy and pure, under the influences of a well-ordered home.

2. To do this to be effectually carried out there must be created a perfect organization for the self-government of counties, towns and villages, with powers for the acquisition and disposal of land for the common good.

3. The next condition of the well-being of the skilled workman is that a day's labor shall consist of eight hours of honest work.

4. In addition to schools for elementary education, there shall be provided schools for practical knowledge and technical skill in the midst of their homesteads.

5. For the moral and physical well-being of the people, places of public recreation, knowledge, and refinement shall be organized as parts of the public service.

6. Public markets shall be erected in every town for the sale of goods in small quantities, of best quality, at wholesale price.

7. There shall be provided a great extension of the organization of the public service on the model of the Post-office, for the common good.

In addition to the names mentioned above, two Liberals, the Earl of LICHFIELD and the Marquis of LORNE, (the husband of the Princess LOUISE,) are also said to have signed this singular compact. Lord LICHFIELD is a well-known philanthropist, and is known to favor the intervention of the State to a considerable extent in social matters; but with this exception it is simply incredible that the members of the two Houses specified above could have committed themselves to such a programme of political action. The plain truth, I believe, is that they expressed themselves, when consulted, generally favorable to the objects named if they could be obtained, but that they did not contemplate legislation for the purpose. There is nothing to alarm anybody, nothing in fact which does not meet with general sympathy and assent in this programme, as representing the aspirations of laboring men. The whole question turns on the means by which these aspirations can be realized, and the idea of enforcing them by compulsory legislation is, of course, nothing but socialism in its purest form. The great argument of the Conservatives against wasting time over the ballot is that there are various urgent measures of domestic economy—such as the regulation of mines, sanitary laws, and so on—which better deserve immediate attention. But these measures fall very far short of the fine projects of social regeneration and Utopian felicity embodied in Mr. ALLAN'S programme. The fact is that the Conservatives have been "flanked" by the Radicals. Good will come of it if it teaches the Conservatives to be more cautious how they lend their countenance to socialist schemes, from which they would be the first to suffer.

THE STRIKES.

The great engineers' strike at Newcastle, of which I gave full particulars last week, has come to an end, at least for the present, somewhat unexpectedly. You will recollect the men, who had hitherto worked fifty-nine hours a week, demanded a reduction to fifty-four, for which they were willing to surrender an equivalent in wages, and that the masters offered a reduction to fifty-seven hours, and a rise of wages for the other three hours in question. The masters would have willingly paid for the whole five hours, and the dispute instead of lasting twenty weeks, might have been settled almost at the first on a pecuniary basis. The plea of the employers was that they could not afford to keep their costly machinery idle during so large a portion of each week, and that the rate of production must be kept up by over-time, or by relays of labor, for which they were quite ready to pay an increased price. The men have now agreed to go back to work on condition that the hours shall be fifty-seven per week, till the end of the year, when they are to be reduced to fifty-four, but on their part they undertake to work over-time as far as it may be desired by the masters. The practical result of the strike, therefore, is simply that over-time will, after the 1st of January, be reckoned an hour earlier, and that the men will pocket the enhanced wages which will thus be allowed. If the men honestly fulfill the compact, they will continue to work for as many hours as at present, and thus they have surrendered the original claims for "three hours, pure and simple." For my own part I have not the slightest doubt that the leaders of the League do not intend to act honestly, that they accept the nominal nine hours a day merely as a stepping-stone to the actual and absolute nine hours, and that as soon as they have got rid of the imported labor, and recovered from the exhaustion of the strike, they will issue a prohibition against over-time. For this the employers must be prepared. Most of the other strikes appear to be also in a fair way of settlement. At the Social Science Congress, this week, there has been some debate on the labor question. Mr. F. HILL contributed a paper deprecating strikes, and recommending arbitration, brotherly love, and all that sort of thing. The interest of the discussion centred in Mr. GEORGE POTTER'S frank confession of his theory of the relation between capital and labor. "The employers," he said, "were living in splendor and they could give large marriage portions and dowries; and if the masters were living on losses, as they said they were, where did this splendor come from?" In plain words, therefore, if you meet a man with a fine gold watch and chain and a glossy hat, while you have no watch and are obliged to be content with a wide-awake, you have a right to assume that you have somehow been robbed, and that the gentleman with a watch and a good hat is no better than a thief. On the other side of the question, Mr. BROSSEY, the son and successor of the great railway contractor and engineer, who died lately worth six millions sterling, has been delivering some very sensible and useful addresses to meetings of working men at Birkenhead and Newcastle. He admitted fully the right of working men to make their own terms, and adopted his father's opinion that if the men were willing and hearty in their labors, short hours were more economical than long hours. But he warned his hearers against giving foreign manufacturers an advantage by unduly reducing the rate of production in this country. No doubt great fortunes were occasionally derived from industrial operations; but the low rate of interest in England as compared with foreign countries proved that our trading profits were moderate. What was earned was not a mere private fortune, but a fund which was practically applied to the profit of the men in increased employment and better wages. On the other hand, he warned employers of the danger of holding aloof from their men and taking no personal interest in them. On this point I may mention that at Newcastle Mr. STEPHENSON'S engineers, conciliated by the arguments he addressed to them, never joined the strike, and that they are now to enjoy the full benefit of the new arrangement at once, instead of having to wait, like the rest, till the year after.

UNION TORPEDOES.

Letter from the Manufacturers to the New-Orleans Dealers—The New-York Explosion "Only an Accident."

The New-Orleans Republican of Wednesday, Oct. 25, published the following additional testimony given before the Coroner at the inquest in that city on the body of the draysman recently killed there by the explosion of "Union torpedoes:"

GEORGE W. YOUNG, book-keeper of MORRIS MCGRAW, sworn: After the return of Mr. MCGRAW from New-York, in the early part of September, he stated to me that, among other things, he had contracted with Messrs. KLEUBER & GOLDSCHMIDT, of New-York, for 300 cases of patent union torpedoes; a few days after I received this information we noticed in the telegraphic dispatches of the morning papers an account of a torpedo explosion at the house of KLUEBER & GOLDSCHMIDT, in New-York; Mr. MCGRAW immediately concluded not to receive the above 300 cases. A few days afterward the invoice and a bill of lading arrived, notifying us that the shipment had been made by the George Hudburt. Mr. MCGRAW requested me to return the bill of lading and invoice to the shippers, and at the same time to write a letter to inform them that we could not receive them on account of the explosion in New-York referred to; and also requested them to send on some agent to receive the cases here, as we would have nothing to do with them. I immediately complied with the request, and returned the bill of lading and invoice in the letter which I sent to New-York. The following reply was received:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 27, 1871.

Mr. Morris McGraw, New-Orleans:

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 20th inst. is received. In reply, be beg to say that we deeply regret that you have concluded to withdraw from your contract, as the late mishap was merely an accident, such as has frequently occurred with other torpedoes and fireworks in general, and we firmly believe that the sale would not in the least affect it to any great extent. As it is, however, we would kindly request you to have the shipment stored in a dry place until Mr. A GOLDSCHMIDT will call upon you, which will be on or about the early part of next month. Mr. GOLDSCHMIDT has a number of orders, and will fill them with the 300 cases; and in order to prove his authority to entitle him to ship, and that you may transfer the lot to him, will produce the bill of lading. Hoping this may be satisfactory, we remain, yours, respectfully,

KLUEBER & GOLDSCHMIDT,

BY L. KLUEBER.

Mr. JOSEPH CHAMBERS, stevedore, who discharged the 300 cases, had been warned by THORNDIKE, NORTON & CO. to handle carefully certain boxes marked MeG., which was done, and about 280 were put on the wharf of Post No. 18.

INCENDIARISM.

The Attempts to Set Large Fires in San Francisco—One Block Fired in Five Places.

From the San Francisco Alta, Oct. 22.

From events that have occurred in our midst within the last few days, we are led to believe that our city is infested with a gang of incendiaries, who have laid plans to set fire to this city, in various parts and at different times, for no other purpose than the destruction of life, property, and robbery. The first bold attempt made which excited suspicion, was to set New Butchertown on fire at a late hour on Wednesday night last. New Butchertown is located near Islais Creek. Some months since the wholesale butchers who, under law, were compelled to move from their old quarters on Brannan-street, built, at a large outlay of money, slaughter-houses to answer all their requirements. These buildings were attempted to be burned down, and the incendiaries, to make sure of their work, as they thought, picked up a lot of tallow about there, threw it on the fire started by them alongside one of the slaughter-houses, and sneaked off. But before the fire had gained any headway, it was discovered and extinguished. The evident object of selecting Butchertown was that the flames, which would be seen at a great distance, would lead the officers of the Fire Department to believe that a very extensive conflagration was raging in South San Francisco. A number of engines, with officers of the Department, would have to be ordered away to the scene, and while the firemen were at work there, in all probability the city would be set on fire in the business portion, thus leaving the Department short-handed to battle the flames and leave the city helpless.

The first attempt having signally failed, plans were laid and a more central location selected, and had the effort succeeded the most dire consequences would have followed. This second attempt was made yesterday morning, between 3:20 and 5 o'clock. The block selected is bounded by Market-street, commencing at Bancroft's building, on Fourth-street and Stevenson-street. On Market-street, from Bancroft's to Fourth-street, are two three-story brick buildings, and quite a number of two and three-story frame buildings. The ground floors of each of these buildings are occupied by dealers in various kinds of merchandise and restaurants. The upper floors are occupied as lodging-houses, offices, and halls for secret societies. On Fourth-street there are a row of large three-story frame buildings, the lower floors being occupied as stores and the upper as lodging-houses. On Stevenson-street there are a large number of private residences and tenement-houses on both sides of the street, which is very narrow. This quarter had been fired in five different places, all on the inside, which (if not detected and premeditated, it had gained any headway before an alarm could be sounded,) would have swept away blocks before it could have been checked.

The first fire was discovered in the rear of No. 256 Stevenson-street, in a two-story frame building, occupied by DANIEL BECKETT and others, and facing BANCROFT'S building on the south. The fire was discovered by Mr. BECKETT, between 3 and 4 A. M., in the woodshed, about four feet square having been burned. Water was soon brought to hand and the glim doused. Shortly afterward a fire was discovered in the woodshed over the St. Boniface Restaurant, No. 745 Market-street. It was found to be the shed belonging to Mrs. KENSLY'S lodging-house, overhead the restaurant. In the stairway leading to Mrs. KENSLY'S, which is east of the United States Medical Purveyor's Department stores, rolls of brown paper were found under the stair carpets, ignited. In the hall-way of No. 747 Market-street, west of the Medical Purveyor's, paper was found under a door leading to the office of this Department. The door is slightly burned, the fire having gone out of itself. Under the stair-carpets in this hall-way was also found a small roll of brown paper, which had been ignited. In the rear of No. 729 Market-street, a lot of old carpets had been set on fire. Next a fire was discovered in the rear of No. 17 Fourth-street, by a lady in Mrs. LYON'S boarding-house. She aroused her husband, who, on running out, found the flames running up along a fence under a shed for several feet, and promptly procured buckets of water, which were thrown on the fire, which was then put out. In the rear of several houses adjoining, small fires were also discovered; in one place kindling wood, rags and rubbish had been nicely piled up, but for some cause it did not get a fair start. Officers BARNARD and HAGGERTY were on hand to render all possible assistance.

This it will be seen is the boldest attempt yet made in this city at incendiarism, not even excepting SOMERVILLE, who seven or eight years ago, set fire to a house, and subsequently went to work and set fire to the houses of parties who had been witnesses against him. He served seven years in the Penitentiary for his crimes.

Chief Engineer SCANNELL, as soon as he was informed of what had happened, visited the premises and examined them thoroughly. Thereupon he had written instructions sent to the foreman of every company in the Department to be as vigilant and prompt as possible, and to have as many members of the company at the engine-house in the evening as he could possibly have, ready to do duty at a moment's notice. Chief CROWLEY has also given orders to all Police officers to keep a sharp look-out on their respective beats for anything that may occur.

Since the above was in type our reporter has learned of another attempt at incendiarism in South San Francisco, on Friday night last. Recently BOWEN BROS. erected a row of nine two-story stores and houses, on Railroad-avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues. On the night in question, some wretch went into one of the outhouses with a lot of Democratic tickets, saturated them with coal oil, placed the tickets between the door slats and ignited them. Fortunately the paint was not quite dry, and the fire went out.

THE LUDLOW-STREET JAIL.

The Complaints of the Prisoners—Serious Charges Made Against the Debtors' Law and Prison Management—The General Examination Ordered Today Before Judge Barnard.

If one-half of the stories of those who now are, or have been, imprisoned in the Ludlow-street Jail are true, the cruelty of the "Debtors' law," as well as the management of the institution cannot be too severely denounced. Undoubtedly there must be some allowance made in measuring the exact truth of all the prisoners have related; but even allowing the widest reasonable margin for prejudice and exaggeration, there is enough of fact to be seen and heard in the Jail by even a casual visitation to shock any humane mind. The complaints and rumors of abuses that have for months past been coming to the public ear are now about to be thoroughly investigated. The sighings of the prisoners from walls of stone and grated iron doors have at last reached the ears of tardy justice, and moved the slow process of law. Today, according to the order of Judge BARNARD, a thorough investigation will be commenced. The official order is as follows:

Ordered that the Sheriff of the City and County of New-York bring before this Court, on Monday, the 30th inst., at 11 o'clock A. M., the following persons, now held and detained in the County Jail, viz.: (The names will be found below) together with the process by which they are held in custody, it being necessary for the purpose of ascertaining whether they can be further legally detained.

Extract from the minutes.

These persons are said to be unlawfully imprisoned for the non-payment of debts which they never can meet, and for the non-production of bail which it is impossible for them to obtain. Technically, these unfortunates are within the grasp of the law, but according to the spirit of our code they are not only illegally restrained of their liberty, but deprived of every possibility of satisfying their creditors. The law authorizes the Courts to issue orders of arrest in any case where a debt has been fraudulently made, where goods purchased have been secreted or conveyed away in a suspicious manner, or where an agreement in trust has been violated. All defendants accused in civil actions of assault and battery, breach of promise, failure in paying alimony, slander, false imprisonment, libel, &c., can be arrested and thrown into this jail until the required amount of bail in their case has been furnished. If, as is the misfortune of many, the bail cannot be furnished, and the prosecutor does not withdraw his action, the prisoner has no hope of release.

The law was intended to punish rogues, but in this matter many an innocent person involved in debt with no dishonest premeditation, but purely a victim of misfortune, is punished as severely as those who are notorious rascals. It is well known that persons have thus been wronged solely from the influence of an enemy, who thus took advantage of the law to satisfy malicious and revengeful feelings. The Sheriff lately has noticed a constant increase in the number of persons committed in this jail for debt, and the augmentation of rumors in regard to their sufferings as well as concerning the entire administration of internal prison affairs, brought the matter before the authorities. Enough has been adduced already to cause an examination into the circumstances, not only of those incarcerated for debt, but also of every prisoner in the institution. It is expected that each one of the 200 will be brought into Court and allowed to make any statement, without fear or favor, with a view to the action of the Grand Jury. There is no doubt that some are very justly punished and others do not receive anything like their full deserts, considering the enormity of the crimes they have committed. There are also professional scoundrels who, if released, would only prey upon society with increased pertinacity and skill. But there are others whose cases are of unusual hardship; they are not only rendered unable to pay their debts, but become helpless burdens upon society. The families of some of these have been known to suffer in poverty, and in one instance, at least, to come to the verge of starvation.

The recital of the stories made by a number of the prisoners to a TIMES reporter revealed a great deal of duplicity in some, and earnestness in others, but there were passages that were of the most intense and pitiful interest.

"If you reveal my name, it will go hard with me," said one. "I could have paid all my debts if I had time. But for the malice of enemies who put me here for —— just to get me out of their way, I could and would have been doing well now. My family live in —— street. It is a tenement-house. We never lived so before. My wife (God bless her) was tenderly brought up, and well educated. My three children I have always kept in comfortable circumstances. Now they are just living—that's all. Their mother has some and makes artificial flowers. She gets a little help from one relative. But I tell you what—since I have been here, behind these iron bars, as well able and willing to work for them and make them happy as any man, and when I knew on more than one occasion that those little ones went to bed supperless, when there was not a loaf of bread sent out of money the whole day through, they were cautious not to say a word that could compromise their hopes of further patronage from TWEED; and they actually tried to prove that the Tammany Eves would not have eaten of the forbidden fruit if they had not been tempted by wicked "Radical" serpents.

At last the Democratic State Convention met. TWEED'S "personal friends" from Albany and Buffalo and other parts of the State assembled at Rochester. They knew that the eyes of the people were upon them. They had got to say and do something about the Tammany frauds. It was a splendid opportunity for the leaders to atone for the disgrace that the exposure of the frauds had laid upon their party. But they preferred to lose that chance and to hold their knee in TWEED'S good graces. On bended knee they besought the "Boss" not to press his claims for admission to the Convention. The arch-thief complied, but upon humiliating conditions, as is amply proved by the subsequent action of the Convention. The Anti-Tammany delegates were excluded; the Tammany ticket was renominated, and men known to the reformers refused to place on State tickets were coolly rejected. The New-York World further announces that, since the Convention, not a practical effort has been made to supplant the Tammany organization.

The Committee of Seventy, in the meantime, pushed their labors to a point where they felt called upon to ask assistance from Gov. HOFFMAN. Up to that time not one Democratic official had raised a finger to help those who were seeking to bring Tammany to justice; unless we except Judge BARNARD, who granted the injunction restraining the Ring from playing ducks and drakes with the City's money. It is not to say that no Democrats were working against Tammany. Some of their best and worthiest men were prominent in the good movement. But the Democratic officials and editors were silent, or openly aggressive against the anti-Tammany men. A delegation waited on Gov. HOFFMAN and obtained a promise that the Democratic Attorney-General should do his duty. As an earnest that the promise should be fulfilled, the Governor assured the Committee that a man who was not suspected of the slightest sympathy with the Ring should practically take the Attorney-General's place. CHARLES O'CONOR was selected; and, thanks to all true, honest reformers who have worked in the good cause, it is to be believed that the hour draws near when the Tammany citadel will be ignominiously battered to the ground.

Of course, Democratic officials now take a hand in the work. They are compelled to take part by virtue of the office they hold. Public indignation is too strong to be resisted, and if the proper officers did not prosecute the thieves they would be impeached. They are, therefore, compelled to turn their guns on Tammany, whether they want to do so or not.

This is a fair review of the inception and progress of the attack upon Tammany. We defy the Tweed organs in this CITY or elsewhere to show wherein the people are indebted for success in overthrowing the thieves to the Democratic Press, Democratic officials or Democratic Party as such. That earnest, honest men in that party have done their best we do not deny. But they have had to work without aid or encouragement from their own journals; and in the very CITY which is the scene of the Ring's wickedness TWEED and the other thieves have been renominated to the Legislature by those who, as the World confesses, constitute the only regular Democratic organization.

One man is imprisoned for contempt of Court for default in paying $178 alimony pending a divorce suit. He had been unable to earn his usual amount by reason of sickness, and was seized and taken to jail from his sick-room. He claims that this was done by the maliciousness of his wife. He sees no hope of release. There are many things that were spoken in confidence and cannot be used in this article, but will doubtless appear in the course of the investigation. All the prisoners who dared speak were unanimous in their denunciation of the prison management, of the sufferings of those unable to pay board, their filthy quarters, bad food, harsh treatment and close restraint; of the great contrast in the attentions and comforts given to those who pay liberally—from $15 to $25 per week—and of other things that were hinted at, but not fully stated.

YALE.

The Woolsey Fund—Official Direction for the Collection—The Committee in Charge of the Work.

At the last Commencement of Yale College, held at New-Haven in July, a resolution was adopted that a fund of $500,000 should be raised by the graduates of the institution, and that the money so collected should be placed at the disposal of the corporation of the College, to be used at its discretion for any purposes whatsoever connected with the University which were calculated to advance its interests. The object of the movement was that the College should have a certain sum unhampered by any special condition, from which to draw whenever the occasion should demand. In honor of the then President of the College, who at this commencement announced his intention to resign his office, it was determined to call this free-will offering of the Sons of Yale "The Woolsey Fund." Toward the furtherance of the scheme proposed, a large number of subscriptions were received on the spot, and a Committee of ten selected who should still further add the project. This Committee—so empowered at the time—has since been enlarged, and have recently issued a circular setting forth the manner in which contributions can be made by those interested in the welfare of the institution, and which it is hoped will accomplish the much-desired result. The following is the circular:

1. Subscriptions will be received from any body, in any form, of any amount, payable in any manner, entirely at the option of the giver, save that they must be to the Woolsey Fund free from any conditions. Gifts to the College for special objects will not constitute a part of this fund.

2. Graduates will be designated to act in behalf of the Committee in all the classes and in all departments of the University. They will be supplied with circulars and subscription papers.

3. To persons of a fixed income it is suggested that their subscriptions be made payable in annual installments, on or before the 1st of May in each year for five successive years. In order to secure success, it is important that every graduate contribute according to his means.

4. Remittances may be made to the College Treasurer, HENRY C. KINGSLEY, Esq., New-Haven, or to the Treasurer of the Committee, ALEXANDER H. STEVENS, Esq., Chairman of the Committee, New-York. The moneys received will be placed at interest for the benefit of the fund. Whenever the sum in the treasury shall amount to $100,000, it will be paid over to the corporation of Yale College, for the purposes set forth in this resolution.

5. Letters of inquiry or suggestion may be addressed to the "Executive Committee of the Woolsey Fund of Yale College," Box No. 2,544, New-Haven, Conn.

The Executive Committee charged with the details of the work are Messrs. MAUNSELL and MASON YOUNG, of this City, and Prof. DANIEL C. GILMAN, of New-Haven. The Treasurer is ALEXANDER H. STEVENS, of New-York, while on the General Committee the following distinguished names are noticeable: Hon. WM. A. BUCKINGHAM, United States Senator; Judges LEWIS B. WOODRUFF and WILLIAM A. STRONG, of the United States Supreme Court; Hon. B. GRATZ BROWN, Governor of Missouri; Hon. HENRY H. HAIGHT, Governor of California; Right Rev. THOMAS M. CLARK, Bishop of Rhode Island; Hon. ANDREW D. WHITE, President of Cornell University; NOAH PORTER, present President of Yale; Rev. Drs. BUSHNELL and BACON, of Connecticut; Hon. WM. M. EVARTS and PETER PARKER, of this City; Hon. WM. M. LEARNED, of the Supreme Court of this State, and Hon. HENRY L. DAWES, of Massachusetts.

A Little History.

From the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

It is not to be supposed that a journal edited by one of BILL TWEED'S "personal friends" will give a true version of the exposure of the frauds of the Tammany Ring, and of the steps that have been taken to bring the thieves to justice. But the TWEED organ in this city persists in misrepresenting the facts in so glaring a way that it is an imposition upon the feelings of all respectable, honest men and a sorry commentary upon the intelligence of Democratic readers.

In this morning's issue the Buffalo Tweed organ says of the proceedings against Tammany, that "everything thus far accomplished has come from Democrats." Now, what are the facts? It will be remembered that the first shot at Tammany was fired by the NEW-YORK TIMES. That bold and indomitable paper published detailed statements which, when, where and how TWEED, HALL and CONNOLLY had stolen and squandered the people's money. The Buffalo Courier refused to publish a line of these charges, and to this day not one of the exposures of Tammany's frauds has been published in that Tweed organ. Not content with a refusal to assist in the work of putting down the corrupt Ring, the Courier lost no chance in assailing the editors of the TIMES with ridicule and invective. Of course these attacks were only echoes of similar attacks made by the Metropolitan Democratic Press. Originality is not a characteristic of TWEED'S Buffalo organ. But while no space could be given to the charges against Tammany that the TIMES made, plenty of room was found in the Courier for stale and silly articles to show that the TIMES was acting from "improper motives," and that the "alleged disclosures" were "mere fabrications" for the object of making political capital.

For a long time the TIMES fought Tammany single-handed. Even some of its Republican contemporaries failed to render the assistance that they ought to have quickly rendered. Finally public indignation was aroused against Tammany. The people began to believe that the exposures of the TIMES were true, even in spite of the assertions of the Democratic Press to the contrary. A mass-meeting was held at Cooper Institute, and a committee was appointed to investigate the charges against the Democratic officials. That meeting was pronounced by the Buffalo Courier to have been a "failure," and the Committee of Seventy has been a standing object for that Tweed organ's vituperation.

Finally, the Democratic editors began to see that they were on the wrong side. The World gave the signal, and then the Buffalo Courier and other little Tammany sheets in the interior began to say that "if" the charges against the New-York City officers were true, something ought to be done about it. They took good care, however, not to let their readers know that the charges against Tammany were true; they were cautious not to say a word that could compromise their hopes of further patronage from TWEED; and they actually tried to prove that the Tammany Eves would not have eaten of the forbidden fruit if they had not been tempted by wicked "Radical" serpents.

MONDAY, Oct. 30—A. M.

The Wall-street markets and General Trade of the past week were much steadier than during the fortnight succeeding the Chicago calamity. Money has settled down to 7 ₱ cent. per annum among the Stock Brokers, on temporary loan, and where Merchant paper is not discounted at the same rate at Bank, it is taken on the Street at 9 ₱ cent. for prime names, and 12@14 ₱ cent. for fair credits, 60 days to 4 months. The Stock Exchange continues unsettled as to the temper of speculation, but in the main prices left off much like the closing figures for the Railroads as on Saturday week; Lake Shore 2 ₱ cent., and Wabash 2½ ₱ cent. higher. The Public Funds are also ¼ ₱ cent. higher on the 5-20s, while Gold is ⅛@¼ ₱ cent. lower. The Foreign Exchanges are ⅛@¼ ₱ cent. stiffer, though still considerably below the Gold shipping points, and with a good supply of Bills making here and and at the South against Domestic Produce. The demand for Exchange to remit against the November Interest on the Public Debt held abroad is thus far inconsiderable. Many of the receivers of the Coupons re-invest in the same Public Funds or in other American Stocks. The Coupons come forward slowly. It is not improbable that the London Syndicate for the New Loan are buying the November Coupons on the 5-20s, at more favorable rates than the other Bankers, to pay into the Treasury as Gold on account of the first of December contract. The whole of that contract, $82,000,000 Coupon 5-20s of 1862, and $18,000,000 Registered 5-20s of the same year, will, from present appearances, be adjusted without moving over five or eight millions Gold, either to or from the Treasury. The Coupon Stock to be paid off is all owned abroad, and the amount that will be sent to Washington, in place of being sold to or exchanged with the London Syndicate, (to save delay and expense of collection here,) will be quite inconsiderable. Whatever the sum may be, the transaction will simply leave a corresponding amount to the credit of the Treasury in London, to be drawn for. The American Syndicate have provided for the $18,000,000 registered stock to be paid off. They have secured already about one-half the Certificates representing this stock, and hold in reserve subscriptions to the New Loan, payable exclusively in Gold on the 1st of December, more than sufficient to take care of the remainder. In reference to the effect of the final adjustment of the negotiation on our Money market, about which inquiry has been made us, we have reason to believe that it will prove neither a disturbing nor stimulating element.

General Trade is rapidly recovering from whatever adverse influences were felt from the Chicago calamity. The amount of Dry Goods of the new importation passing into Bond, is, to be sure, larger than in September, but this is not unusual at this late stage of the Fall season, while, on the other hand, the amount of General Foreign Merchandise now being marketed, is much larger than in last October, as shown by the Customs Duties paid into the Treasury. There were $2,701,715 for the week, against $2,072,000 same week, last year. The month will yield at the New York Office $12,500,000 Customs, at an average (revised) Tarif of 40 per cent. ad valorem on the Goods Imported, against $11,724,000 last year, when the average was 45 per cent. ad valorem. The gain since July 1 is nearly $6,000,000. The Exports of Domestic Produce, from New York, look equally encouraging. The increase since the first of July, the beginning of the current fiscal Year, is thirty per cent., the declared value of the clearances being $78,000,000 as against $60,000,000 from July 1 to Oct. 26 last year. On the other hand, the Export of Gold has fallen off nearly one-half, or from $34,947,000 to $18,322,000 since July 1.

The Cotton Export from the South of the new crop shows, thus far, very little difference in the number of bales. The decrease is about 15,000 bales to the present date, which is more than compensated by the increased price. The value of the Cotton Export, out of the last crop, reduced to Gold, was $194,934,918, out of a crop in gross of 4,357,000 bales. The value of the Export out of the current crop, we confidently estimate, will amount to $225,000,000, (in Gold,) out of a crop, in gross, of 3,800,000 to 4,000,000 bales; in saying which we are aware that much lower estimates of the crop are indulged in the Cotton trade.

The weekly averages of the Associated Banks, Local and National, reporting through the Clearing-house for the week ending Saturday last, Oct. 28, compare as follows with the previous week, and also with the corresponding week last year. To which we add the Gold and Currency balances in the New-York office of the United States Treasury at these dates respectively:

| | Oct. 29, '70. | Oct. 28, '71. | Oct. 21, '71. |

The Bank return published this morning exhibits the relative strength of the movement in respect to the lawful money held as against the circulation and deposits, to which we add the position of the movement the week before, and also of the movement of the corresponding week last year:

| | Oct. 21, '71. | Oct. 28, '71. | Oct. 29, '70. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Deposits | $203,791,000 | $203,342,200 | $193,077,808 |
| Circulation | 30,294,300 | 30,492,800 | 32,420,509 |
| Total | $234,085,300 | $233,835,000 | $225,498,317 |
| Required 25 ₱ ct. | $58,521,325 | $58,458,750 | $56,374,579 |
| Gold and Greenbacks | 60,116,100 | 60,372,650 | 66,117,505 |
| Excess | $1,594,775 | $1,913,900 | $9,742,926 |
| Rate for money | 7 ₱ ct. | 7 ₱ ct. | 6 ₱ ct. |

The Bank return shows a gain of only $600,700 on the Gold average, which is scarcely consistent with the payment of $3,050,082 Gold interest out of the Treasury for the week, and the sale of $2,000,000 Treasury Gold on Thursday, as against $2,701,715 received for Customs. The average is probably a rising one, and will show much better next week. The Banks have further reduced their Loans $2,121,500. The Deposits are down $448,800; the Circulation is up $198,500. The Greenback average is $344,200 less than last Monday. In point of Lawful Money strength the Banks stand about the same as on the previous return.

The Import Entries at New-York, embracing foreign Dry Goods and General Merchandise, for the past week, were $7,896,357 as against $5,273,080 for the corresponding week last year. The Exports of Domestic Produce, other than Gold and Silver, were $5,276,054, against $4,337,058 same week in 1870. The exports of Gold and silver, $413,681, against $303,562 same week in 1870. The Customs in Gold paid into the New-York Office of the United States Treasury for the week were $2,701,715. The receipts of Cotton, coastwise and by rail, 23,433 bales.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ THE PEORIA AND ROCK ISLAND 7 PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE CONVERTIBLE GOLD BONDS may now be obtained from the undersigned, and from banks and bankers throughout the country, at

NINETY AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

They are secured by a mortgage on ninety-one miles of completed road connecting the cities of Peoria and Rock Island, and having a navigable river at each end. The road forms a part of a short through route from the Atlantic to the Pacific Roads, and its net earnings are largely in excess of the interest on the total issue of bonds, which is about $16,500 per mile. The business offered is sufficient to pay a large dividend on the capital stock, making the bonds absolutely safe, and a very desirable investment.

Maps and pamphlets furnished, containing full particulars, by

TURNER BROTHERS, No. 14 Nassau-st.

☞ THE WEST WISCONSIN RAILWAY is now very nearly finished, and trains will be running through from Tomah to St. Paul by Nov. 1. The earnings of the Road from local traffic on the completed portion constitute already a profitable business; and arrangements and connections are about perfected which will make it the Great Air-Line Route from Chicago to the North-west, effecting a saving of more than 100 miles over the present route. The Bonds are a First Mortgage on the road itself and on a valuable Land Grant of 1,000,000 acres. They bear interest in gold at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and are sold now at 90 and accrued interest in currency by WHITE, MORRIS & CO., No. 18 Wall-st., and GWYNNE, JOHNSON & DAY, No. 16 Wall-st., where pamphlets and further information may be obtained.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND LAND-GRANT BONDS OF THE ST. JOSEPH AND DENVER CITY RAILROAD COMPANY,

IN DENOMINATIONS OF $1,000, $500, AND $100, can now be had from the undersigned or through the principal banks and bankers of the United States. The attention of investors is invited to the merits of these bonds, secured by a first and only mortgage on the road, equipments, franchises, and property of a trunk line of railroad which will shorten the distance between New-York and San Francisco some 230 miles, and in addition the mortgage to secure the bonds covers a land-grant of 1,500,000 acres of the most fertile land in the West, which is prohibited from being sold at less than four ($4) dollars per acre by the terms of the mortgage deed, and according to the present market price of the Illinois Central Company's lands is worth $18,750,000. This loan was originally for $5,500,000, but has been largely reduced by subscriptions of actual investors. The remaining balance of the loan is offered at 97½ and accrued interest, but the right is reserved to advance the price at any time, with out notice.

The bonds have thirty years to run; bear 8 per cent. interest, payable in New-York, London or Frankfort-on-the-Main, at the option of the holder, without notice, free of taxes. BOTH PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ARE PAYABLE IN GOLD. They are Coupon Bonds, but can be registered with the coupons ON, or can be registered with the coupons OFF, and interest paid to registered owner. Interest payable Aug. 15 and Feb. 15. A liberal sinking fund, formed from the entire land sales, in payment for which the bonds will be received at par and accrued interest, provides for the early extinguishment of this loan.

Trustees—Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

These bonds offer favorable inducements to parties desiring to fund their Five-Twenties or other high-priced securities.

In converting Five-Twenties the investors realize 17 per cent. profit on the principal; 2 per cent. per annum excess of interest; and at the same time get a perfect security.

Maps, circulars, documents, and full information furnished on application.

Though acting as agents for the sale of this loan, our firm buy and sell in their regular business the bonds of the St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad Company, those of the Eastern Division being now quoted at 102 and accrued interest. These were originally placed by us at 97½.

☞ OFFICE OF FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS AND FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY,
No. 5 NASSAU-ST., NEW-YORK.

The rails are being laid on the Western Division of 100 miles of the Extension of East and West Trunk line, which in a short time will be ready for travel and traffic, and to commence the transportation of Kanawha coal to the Ohio River. The earnings of the Eastern Division of 227 miles, as a local road, awaiting the completion of the Middle Division of 100 miles, will reach, this year, nearly $800,000. The total cost of the entire road, and the large equipment required for its mineral and through traffic, will be fully $30,000,000.

The total amount of the FIRST MORTGAGE Bonds, which we are now selling, is FIFTEEN MILLION DOLLARS, of which only about four millions remain unsold, the proceeds of which, with the Cash on hand, will be ample for the completion of the entire line. The inducements they offer to investors are: A perfect security; great popularity and a high price when the road is finished; the same rate of interest as FIVE-TWENTIES; principal and interest both payable in United States gold coin in New-York City; their present low price (93 and accrued interest) 20 per cent. less than Five-twenties, with equally certain payment of interest and principal.

We recommend them to our friends and customers with the same confidence with which we have always recommended the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT and the CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS.

We continue to buy and sell CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS, and fully expect they will, in time, reach the price of Five-twenty Bonds. They are dealt in at the principal money-centres of the world; the Company have none left, and can issue no more, on their Main Line, as the amount was fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,000; the property pledged to secure the bondholders is worth fully one hundred millions; the net receipts of the road for the year will be nearly three times the interest payments thereon.

The CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are issued in $100, $500, $1,000; either coupon or registered; interest, six per cent., gold, payable May and November.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS are all of $1,000 each; interest six per cent., gold, payable January and July, in New-York City.

Deposit accounts of banks, bankers and others received, on which we allow four per cent. interest. Checks payable on presentation, without notice, same as a National Bank.

☞ WINSLOW, LANIER & CO.,
No. 27 PINE-STREET,

Offer for sale, at 90 per cent. and accrued interest in currency, and recommend as an investment of the most undoubted character, the 7 Per Cent. Bonds of the GRAND RAPIDS AND INDIANA RAILROAD COMPANY. They have 30 years to run, principal and interest payable in gold, coupon or registered, interest October and April. They are secured by a first mortgage on 220 miles of finished road and 100 miles more in progress, and on a Land Grant of one million one hundred and sixty thousand acres of lumber land in Northern Michigan. The road extends from Fort Wayne, where it connects with the extensive system of roads centering at that point, northerly, and having been finished through the rich agricultural region of Southern and Central Michigan, has now penetrated the Land Grant. The lands have been recently put upon the market, and are being rapidly sold. By the terms of the mortgage the proceeds of the land must be invested by the Trustees in the purchase of the Bonds, which insures their constant repurchase from the holders. This Land Grant is estimated to be worth $12,000 000, and is probably more available for immediate sale than any other Land Grant ever made to any company. The whole issue is Eight Million Dollars, of which more than six millions have been disposed of. This road is run as a connection of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, and the Pennsylvania Railroad, and has the powerful support of those companies and their numerous affiliated lines. These Bonds have been sold in large lines to the most prudent investors.

☞ EDWARD HAIGHT & CO., NO. 9 WALL-ST., RECOMMEND THE BONDS OF THE RONDOUT AND OSWEGO RAILROAD IN EXCHANGE FOR 5-20S. THE INVESTOR ADDS 25 PER CENT. TO HIS CAPITAL, AND 47½ TO HIS INCOME.

The New-York Times.

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, and advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

The utmost care will be devoted to gathering political news from special sources during the Presidential canvass. This department of the paper will be unusually full and trustworthy. Renewed enterprise will be exhibited in every department of the paper, and large space will be devoted to reports of speeches made during elections, or on other important political occasions.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Assistant Treasurer in this City has been instructed to buy one million in bonds each Wednesday during the month of November—five millions in all—and to sell one million in coin each on the first, third and fifth Thursdays, and two millions each on the second and fourth Thursdays in the month—seven millions in all....The Subcommittee on Kuklux outrages have just closed a sitting of six days at Demopolis, Ala., and will hold a session of a week at Livingston....The steamer Isla de, Cuba arrived at Santiago de Cuba on Saturday, with troops from Spain....The steamer Western Metropolis, from New-Orleans, with her shaft broken, was towed into Key West yesterday, by the steamer Sherman.....There were four deaths from yellow fever at Charleston, S. C., yesterday....It is now reported that in the recent bank robbery at Great Barrington, the property stolen amounted to $125,000.....The President has appointed Thursday, the 30th day of November, as a day of national thanksgiving....A stack at the iron furnace of ANDREWS BROTHERS, near Youngstown, Ohio, exploded on Saturday morning. The effects were terribly destructive to the surrounding buildings. Nine men were seriously injured, and two have since died. The loss is $70,000.... Eight more of the Los Angeles, Cal., rioters have been arrested and there is manifestly a determination to bring them to justice.

Viscount CHOISEUL, the French Envoy at Florence, has resigned his position. The laborers in the town of Chemnitz, Saxony, have made a demand for higher wages and a reduction of daily labor to ten hours. Failing to meet with success in their demand, they have made a strike. The Pope has agreed to accept the Bishops appointed by the King of Italy; but will not acknowledge DOLLINGER or any of his advocates. In the Cortes, at Madrid, on Friday, a memorial from the Government was read, announcing that the cost of the war in Cuba during the past year had been about $68,000.000, and that the Colonial deficit for the year would amount to about $11,000,000. The Government asks for a credit of $100,000,000 of pesetas (about $20,000,000, for military purposes. Mr. GLADSTONE made an address to his constituents at Greenwich, England, on Saturday, in which he spoke in the highest terms of the Queen and defended his colleagues....It is reported that the revolutionary party in Mexico have taken the town of Saltillo, and a large quantity of provisions.

The Last Week of Work.

The Young Men Reformers are doing some of the best work of the canvass. They are beating up voters very energetically—we hear of their having called at this or that house in many different parts of the City, and the records they are keeping of the number of voters in each house, will materially assist in the detection of frauds after election—as was the case, under similar circumstances, in Connecticut. Our friends in the State may confidently reckon upon having no great obstacles to overcome this year in New York City. Not only are the working men generally disgusted with the robberies which the Tammany chiefs have carried on, but the usual machinery for cheating at the polls and during the count is pretty nearly out of gear. We anticipate that the County Reform ticket (as printed in our political news today) will win by forty thousand majority; and as for the State ticket, it is bound to carry everything before it. We cannot believe that Republicans in the interior will refuse to vote on this most important occasion. If they decline to "make an effort" now, there is not a man among them who will not deeply repent of his inaction, and with good reason, before many months are over.

We call the attention of our friends in the interior to the fact that the best men among the Democrats here are in favor of extinguishing the Tammany gang. We have, indeed, heard one or two Democrats express a fear that their party would be injured by the present attack upon Tammany. But can any intelligent man fail to see that the injury done to the Democratic Party by TWEED, HALL & Co. retaining their present positions in it, would be simply irreparable? Mr. TILDEN, Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR and others take the only sensible view—throw TWEED & Co. overboard, or down the ship must go. Honest Democrats, as a body, see this, and they will go against Tammany. The Reformers will keep a sharp look-out for the repeaters. See what the Young Men's Municipal Reform Association have decided upon doing.

"On the day of election volunteers will be stationed at every polling-place in the City, and at night these gentlemen will watch the count, having been promised the protection of the Police for that purpose. Meanwhile a thorough canvass is being made to ascertain what course public opinion is taking, and the gratifying fact is announced that thinking men almost universally denounce Tammany. The members of the Association make no nominations, nor do they advocate any particular candidates, but simply content themselves with efforts to bring out the reserve vote."

We trust our large employers will close their stores to-morrow week. They will not lose by it, for election day is always a dull day for business, and this year it is likely to be worth less than usual for business purposes.

To our friends in the interior we say, poll a heavy vote—do not stand aloof from a contest involving issues so momentous to the State, and to the country at large. To our friends in the City, we say—register next Wednesday, if you have not already done so. Don't let croakers discourage you—the world abounds with croakers. They don't amount to "a row of pins" when the real push comes. Close your store or place of business next Tuesday week, so as to allow your assistants to vote. Attend the great meeting at the Cooper Institute next Thursday evening—a supplementary meeting to that held a few weeks ago. Let nothing prevent your voting, short of a broken leg. There is only one more week for work, remember—let us all make a good use of it.

Keeping Up His Spirits.

In the Fourth Senatorial District, W. M. TWEED, a Thief, is a candidate for re-election. The fact that he is a candidate seems to excite no surprise anywhere. It does not appear to be thought at all strange that a man charged with swindling the public out of millions of dollars, is putting himself up for the position of State Senator—and what is more, is pretty sure of being elected.

There are many thousands who believe that TWEED will come out of "this thing" (as the Thief pleasantly calls it) all right. The people who went bail for him on Friday hold this opinion. They practically put down a certain sum of money, and stake it on the event. They are willing to bet so much that their chum, the "Boss," will live to "remember" them for sticking by him in his hour of trouble.

As for the Boss himself, he rather enjoys being proved a thief. It gives him a certain amount of additional distinction in the eyes of his supporters. They "know how it is themselves." If the "Boss" could manage to break into a bank, or rob STEWART'S or TIFFANY'S, or commit a murder or two before to-morrow week, his chances of election would be immensely promoted thereby.

His own view of the situation is worth looking at. On Saturday he unbosomed himself to a Herald reporter. In the first place, the reporter describes the personal appearance of his light-fingered friend:

"As the latter shook hands with him he was enabled closely to study the 'Boss'' looks. He appeared to be as jovial in mood as he ever was in his life. His countenance bore no trace whatever which would have led one to suppose that he had so lately undergone an ordeal that would have made most men, guilty or innocent, to have passed a very sleepless night of it. Indeed, he looked fresher, talked with more cheerfulness, and moved about with a more elastic step than he had for weeks past."

The fact is that a man who began life as a ruffian and a loafer, then became a dishonest bankrupt, and then graduated in the Tammany school of politics, is not likely to be much affected by being shown up as a thief. Hear what TWEED himself says:

"The reporter took a seat, and, while Mr. TWEED went about fixing a book here and stowing away a document there, remarked:

'I came here to see you looking very downcast, Mr. TWEED. From all I could learn outside you were, to use a vulgar phrase, very down in the mouth.'

The 'Boss' turned round abruptly, and, as he pressed his hand down upon the wafer of an envelope to a letter, with a whack that made the table near where he was shake and shiver, he burst out laughing, and exclaimed:

'You don't say so! Well now it is strange how people who don't know me and probably never saw me, know all about me better than I do myself. I dare say you can go along Broadway now and find a great many very wise individuals who will tell you they saw me today striding up and down my office tearing my hair out by the handful, and cursing the day I was born. Why, I met a friend of mine today who met a Republican friend of his who was almost ready to swear I had lost twenty pounds of flesh since Monday. Now I look very much like a man who felt troubled, don't I?' and the 'Boss' sat down in his chair, a broad grin spreading itself all over his face.

'Then you feel, today, Mr. TWEED, just as easy about the hubbub that is going on as you did yesterday?'

'I feel perfectly free from any feeling of anxiety.'"

Thus it does not appear that this excellent gentleman stands much in need of "sympathy"—either from Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER or any other feeling soul. As we have often said, it is the people who require "Christian sympathy."

Mr. Nathaniel Sands.

When NATHANIEL SANDS, the great reformer of abuses, the enemy of corruption, the austere and public-spirited manager of the Citizens' Association, went over to TWEED, CONNOLLY & Co., the Tammany Ring gained an ally and confederate less bold than TWEED, but by long odds the most cunning and astute of the tribe. Ten thousand a year was moderate pay for the services of a man who could blindfold PETER COOPER, who knew how to keep the Citizens' Association silent during many months, while newspapers and citizens were exposing corruption; who had the ingenuity to persuade such men as Mr. WM. WOOD to join TWEED in the Dock Board, and the cunning to get TWEED to make Gen. MCCLELLAN Chief Engineer of that part of the public works.

Ten thousand a year, and what more SANDS' son, and SANDS' friends got—RICHARD M. HENRY, his Secretary in the Citizens' Association, has, we believe, eleven thousand from his two offices—is not enough for such ability as SANDS has displayed; and no doubt he feels, as he writes, that he deserves all the little plum of seventy-five thousand dollars which he took out of the City Treasury so quietly, with, as he boasts, CONNOLLY'S consent. No doubt, too, TWEED and company agree with SANDS that he deserved all that and more; which may account for the liberality of TWEED in taking SANDS into partnership in the Tobacco Manufacturing Association, No 32 Warren-street, of which, it seems, TWEED made SANDS President, and in which SANDS (so good a thing is it) has put one of the younger SANDS, as he put another (or the same one?) in a City office.

For it was a real stroke of genius in SANDS to put himself into the office of Tax Commissioner. An able and unscrupulous man in that place has his hands upon the throats of the tax-payers. He may invite friendship; he may reward silence; he may punish refractory opposition, when he judiciously lessens the valuation of a building; it does not take a pair of double-barreled magnifying spectacles for the owner, dropping in accidentally at the Tax Commissioner's office, to see that SANDS is the purest of patriots and the most exemplary of assessors. When, on the other hand, he judiciously increases a valuation—or rather while he is considering whether it ought or ought not to be increased—the hapless owner, busy, hard pressed, with money tight, and an expensive family to support, is hardly in a state of mind to decide impartially whether or not it is best for him to invite the patriotic and public-spirited Commissioner to a public dinner in recognition of his exalted merits and resplendent services, or whether or not he ought to continue his liberal subscription to the Citizens' Association.

Of course such a place is not fit for a rough, a hasty, or a blundering man. To manage it well it must be filled by a man of discrimination, a good judge of the weaknesses of other men, a cunning plodder. TWEED would never do there; he would kill the goose, and put an end to the golden eggs. For SWEENY the place would have few charms; it is too laborious. How they must all have chuckled when they were able to put SANDS into it; SANDS, who smothered the combined indignation of the Citizens' Association from early Spring to late Fall, so completely that it was never heard of; SANDS, who paraded poor PETER COOPER at Albany and in New-York as the ally of Boss TWEED; SANDS, who knew how to make people see through his eyes so thoroughly that they presently imagined TWEED and CONNOLLY and SWEENY and HALL angels of light.

For all this, surely ten thousand a year, and a place for his son, and the Presidency of TWEED'S cigar works, and other small pickings, were not enough. Seventy-five thousand dollars commissions, conveyed by TWEED'S or CONNOLLY'S invitation were well earned, and no doubt SANDS felt very comfortable about it—till he was found out. We are sorry for Mr. COOPER'S "surprise," "mortification" and "chagrin;" it is hard to be disappointed at his term of life; but if he had listened to the warning of friends long ago, he would now have been saved from what we have no doubt is a grief to his kind heart, and a shock to his confidence.

SANDS has been dismissed from the Citizens' Association. That will relieve a good many people who have reluctantly paid their subscriptions to his agents. Will he now dismiss himself from the Tax Commissionership? Or will it require a law-suit, and an arrest and trial, to extract him from the snuggest berth that even so designing and unscrupulous a person as he ever contrived to slip into? That is a question in which a considerable number of property owners and tax-payers now feel almost as much interest as in the fate of TWEED. Nothing will satisfy SANDS himself but a "Committee of Investigation" into his conduct—he knows the value of whitewash. He nominates the Committee himself, and puts upon it the name of Mr. HORACE GREELEY. SANDS is not without a sense of humor, humbug though he may be.

Mr. Charles O'Conor's Letter.

The publication of Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR'S letter is one of those incidents in this long fight against corruption which make those engaged in it take new hope and courage. It illustrates most clearly the qualities of a good citizen most needed in these bad times—sound sense, independent judgment, sensitive honor, capacity for righteous indignation, and courageous determination to devote one's powers to the general good. If any honest man can read this letter and remain indifferent to the election concerning which it is written, we believe it is because he is hopelessly stupid or utterly unworthy of the rights which our citizens enjoy. Mr. O'CONOR is a life-long Democrat; he has adhered to his party on questions of national politics with extreme tenacity, and at times when many as earnest as he were compelled to abandon it; but his Democracy does not blind his eyes to the truth. In his letter he clearly declares the existence of atrocious frauds. He attributes them to the "control of four persons over our local Administration." He points out that the three still retaining power are "acting in perfect concert for mutual protection." He shows that the "last lingering doubt" of the guilt of the leader of this triumvirate "must now be removed from every fair mind." He traces the vast powers for mischief possessed by this body of men to the statutes passed by the Legislature, "in which their chief sat as law-maker," and he states that "it is boasted by some as a proof of his cleverness, indignantly asserted by others as manifesting his wickedness, and conceded by all, that these statutes were mainly procured by bribing our State legislators with moneys rifled from the public Treasury." Mr. O'CONOR adds, after indicating the "few, feeble and utterly inefficient" restraints of our fundamental law upon legislative robbery, that "if these men can continue to control our State Legislature, their domination must remain unbridled, and in an amazingly short space of time every square foot of land in the City will be mortgaged to public creditors pretty nearly, if not quite, to its full value, for moneys raised on the public credit by our officials and mainly applied to the uses of themselves and their retainers."

After thus showing what bad Legislatures have done and can do, and that an honest one, even for a single year, could undo much, and give us great hope for protection in the future, Mr. O'CONOR appeals to Democrats and Republicans to unite in defeating bad men. He would have them do this by the minority party, in a district where a doubtful man is put up, refraining from running a candidate of their own, but tendering their united support to an honest candidate of the opposing party. The advice is sound, and is in substance what we have urged during this campaign.

Mr. O'CONOR cannot serve as a candidate for the Legislature—though he believes, and justly, that the election would bring him no discredit, whether he were or were not successful,—first, because his time will be wholly occupied in his legal work against the Ring, and, second, because he wishes to give no shadow of cause for aspersing his motives in the discharge of his duties as acting Attorney-General. Nevertheless, his services are frankly tendered to the people, and he points out in what line of action against the Ring he would like to take part. He says:

"Whatever may be done in this City by that false canvassing which is the last diabolical resort of official villainy, it may yet be hoped that an honest majority of the country members will begin the session by determining the right to contested seats. And, if need there shall be, the corrupt returns of the New-York City triumvirate may be passed upon together as presenting a single question. This trial of the conspirators together, on one indictment, would prevent them from voting each for the others, and, if truth and justice should demand it, would, in the result, involve them in a conviction for their common crime, and a consequent common rejection."

In such a trial Mr. O'CONOR'S aid would be invaluable to the people. We wish that every voter in the State could read Mr. O'CONOR'S letter. The Reform Committees—especially the Republican State Committee—cannot do better than to circulate it widely.

The Cost of Revolution.

A report has been printed upon the present condition of trade and the working classes in Paris. It is the work of authorized members of the municipality, and, as they happen to be of extreme radical opinions, we may assume that they do not exaggerate the evils of revolution. A perusal of this report increases the anxiety caused by an examination into the state of French finances. It is plain that the workshops are full of discontent, and the report in question quite confirms the account of a writer who declares that "Belleville is angry, the Faubourg St. Antoine is apprehensive, and the Party of Order seems likely to make an industrial solitude in the name of the interests of social peace."

According to this report, the enormous number of one hundred thousand skilled workmen have been lost to Paris, since the beginning of the troubles, through death, imprisonment, or flight. Of twenty-four thousand shoe-makers, one-half are missing; one-third of the thirty thousand tailors are gone, and other trades are affected in like proportions. The heavy pressure of taxation, and fears as to the stability of things, deter many from coming back to Paris who might otherwise do so, and the proclamation of a complete amnesty has been put off so long that it is reasonable to suppose that many others, excluded in the absence of such a proclamation, will have made other plans for the future. Further than this we are assured that "American emigration is being organized among the discontented workmen." France, they fear, is lost to democracy; "labor, progress, wealth, all the old French civilization are going to the New World." This may be the expression of but a temporary feeling. Parisians, we all know, are apt to be deeply attached to Paris; and, just as after great fires and epidemics human energy and population often make wonderful progress, reaction may in this case set in. The blow that has fallen upon her manufactures has been felt by the city before, and she has in time recovered from it. Thus, according to a report of the Paris Chamber of Commerce, drawn up after the Revolution of 1848, it appears that, whereas in 1847 the total manufactures of the city reached fourteen hundred millions of francs, they fell in the succeeding year, under the influence of the crisis, to six hundred and seventy-seven millions. No such debt was, however, incurred by the coup d'état as that under which France now labors, and of course her impoverishment as regards men has had no recent parallel.

As we have lately shown, on the authority of the figures of M. MICHEL CHEVALIER, the added burden on France in the shape of interest on funded debt brings the aggregate to about two hundred million dollars a year; and the total annual expenses can hardly be reckoned at less than six hundred and fifty millions of dollars. This, coupled with the loss of some of her richest departments and some millions of population, renders the position of France deplorable indeed. The late issue of paper money, promptly attended by a rise in the (nominal) value of gold, will probably be followed by fresh issues, and it is hard to see how means can be found for subsequent contraction of currency, such as has been possible here. An advance in the price of the necessaries of life has of course taken place. The Paris restaurants have been forced to put up their rates. Rents have been forced up by the new tax. An extraordinary rise has taken place in the price of all glass, china and earthenware, and is beginning in household furniture and clothing. The various railway companies are increasing their charges,—which seems unavoidable since on Oct. 15, the new tax of ten per cent. on all fares went into effect. This, it should be remembered, is in addition to the similar tax on the railways that existed before. From these facts it will be seen that food, lodging, garments and transportation are all rising in cost, and this at a time when the people are least able to bear the pressure. The Government meanwhile, says the London Daily News, "does nothing to restore the confidence of the industrial classes. French workmen are not returning to Paris; they are, on the contrary, still flying from it,"—a sad condition of things considering the already depleted condition of the various trades.

The situation is one demanding great financial skill in the French Treasury, and great sagacity in the other administrative branches. Whether these qualities will be forthcoming, remains to be seen. That they should not already be apparent, is a matter for deep regret. All who wish well to France, and all who wish well to republics, would hail with joy the tokens of that capacity and energy on the part of those in authority without which there seems in the French future nothing but gloom and disaster. Revolutions cost too much, as has been bitterly shown, for them to be lightly essayed from within or applauded from without. If, however, the men in power fail to comprehend the gravity of the national situation, or fail to evince the ability to grapple with its difficulties, some change may be regarded as certain, and that at no distant time. The discomfiture of Prince NAPOLEON in Corsica may dash the hopes of the Imperialists, and the timidity of the two monarchical branches may send both, as often before, to the wall; but the financial question will speedily dwarf all others in France.

Our Public Charities.

One very unfortunate effect of the frauds of the Ring is that those who have legal claims on the public moneys, and have performed good service for the City, cannot get their pay. Many of the working men employed by the different Departments have engaged themselves in good faith to the City, and have done honest work. Thousands have been living for months on credit, waiting for their well-earned wages. But Mr. TWEED and others have spent the money received from taxation for their own jobs and their own private benefit. They have stolen the hire of the laborers. They have got their champagne dinners and fast horses, and "palatial" stables, and diamond shoe-buttons out of the wages of the hodmen and bricklayers and pipe-layers and mechanics, who see a hard Winter before them without a penny in their pockets or a loaf in the closet. The deputations which beset Mr. GREEN ought to throng the lobbies of the office of Public Works, and ask TWEED for the stolen wages and the filched pay of honest working men. Mr. GREEN can do nothing. If he pays any bill, however pressing, without proper authority of law, he is personally liable. The money for the laborers is gone. Mr. GREEN cannot get it back again. The Courts may indeed wrest from TWEED and his associates the stolen millions, and then the wages could be paid. But now it is difficult to see how Mr. GREEN can meet these demands. He may borrow here and there a few hundred thousands, but this policy can not continue long. The banks and capitalists will soon become cautious of lending, unless there is some radical change and reform in the City Government. Even City bonds would be a doubtful investment while things remain as they are. To carry on the Government of this City the Deputy Controller must have before the 1st of January, 1872, at least $18,000,000. How is he going to raise this large sum? How is he to meet the pressing daily wants of the laborers?

We are rejoiced to see that he has succeeded in borrowing sufficient to pay the salaries of the teachers in the public schools, so that these useful institutions will not be obliged to be closed, and education can go on, even if we are practically bankrupt. By some means or other—probably largely on credit—our great public charities, such as the almshouses, hospitals, nurseries, &c., on Randall's and Blackwell's Islands, are being carried on. These, of course, should never be suffered for a day to languish or be closed. The useful institutions which are suffering most are those which are the greatest honor to this City—the large private charities that depend for a part of their income on public moneys. These institutions usually receive from the means raised by taxation a support proportional to the public work they accomplish. These appropriations are made under special laws, and are obligations of the City as much as its debts to the Park Department or the Board of Police. But being merely charities, they are put in the background, and receive now nothing of the moneys due them. Some of them, as we understand, are under much embarrassment on this account, having borrowed funds on the strength of their appropriations; and now they are in imminent danger of being forced to close their doors to their poor subjects as the most inclement season approaches.

Mr. GREEN, feeling the public injury which such an event would cause, has recently presented the claims of a few of those private associations of charity to the Board of Apportionment. Among them were such well-known and responsible charities as the "Roman Catholic Protectory" for destitute children, the "Children's Aid Society," the "Deaf and Dumb Asylum," and the "Nursery and Child's Hospital." The amount due these various institutions was about $100,000. No employment of public moneys could be more generally approved than this discharge of the City's obligations to the care-takers of destitute, homeless, foundling, and unfortunate children. The fund, for a share in which Mr. GREEN applied on behalf of these charities, was the Excise Fund—a sum of money raised by taxes on those who sell liquors in the City. Nothing could be more appropriate than thus to employ the means of the makers of drunkards, for the care and support of those who are mainly drunkards' children. The Mayor, however, and Mr. SWEENY objected, on the ground that claims which ought to be met by general taxation, and were supported by special laws, should not be paid from a special fund, such as the Excise Fund, designed as a source of donations.

Mr. GREEN urged in reply that the money designed for these charities was already spent and that it would be for the public benefit to use the excise moneys for this charitable object, especially as the Commissioners had complete authority to dispose of it for charities as they chose. The subject was at length referred to a committee, who have not as yet reported. Mr. GREEN would do a service to the public by employing the very first moneys he may obtain under a new régime for general purposes, in upholding these most useful charities. No expenditure of money does half so much to lessen crime, diminish the burden of pauperism, and redeem the character of the City, as that upon these humble but most beneficial charities for children.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Democracy of Queens County must be hard pushed when they are forced to resort to the silly charge against Mr. PRINCE, the Republican candidate for the Assembly, that he voted for the "Code Amendment bill" in the last Legislature. Everybody knows that the Code Amendment bill, as it passed the Legislature, was to all appearance unobjectionable, and that it received the votes of the best men of both parties in both houses. It was the forgeries committed in the bill after it passed, and while it was in the Clerk's office, that made it infamous. Neither Mr. PRINCE nor any other member of the Legislature except the Tammany Ring knew, or suspected, that it contained the objectionable provisions till after the Legislature adjourned. It has been proved by the affidavit of the Chairman of the Senate Committee who reported the bill, as well as by the testimony of other Senators and Assemblymen, that no such provisions were in it when it passed the Legislature. The attempt to classify Mr. PRINCE among the corruptionists for the last Legislature, is so absurd to any one who knows the facts, that it is hardly worth the while to spend time to contradict it. The fact that he was elected last year from a strong Democratic district, by a union of the honest men of both parties, and that the same men, without distinction of party, are supporting him again this year, is proof sufficient that his constituents don't believe a word of the charge.

Speaker HITCHMAN asked us, the other day, to notice the fact, which he seemed to consider a feather in his cap, that he had issued a strict order, as President of the Fire Commission, that no member of the Fire Department should be allowed to act as Inspector of Election—the reason given therefor being that they were paid by the City for their services as firemen, and had no right to be off duty even for a day. We now perceive that Mr. HITCHMAN and JOHN J. BLAIR, both Fire Commissioners, have accepted nominations for the Assembly from Tammany Hall, which, in case they are elected, will require their absence from duty at least four months of the ensuing year. We should like to know whether Mr. HITCHMAN intends to abide by his own order, or whether he thinks that a member of the Fire Department who receives five thousand dollars a year from the City is entitled to privileges which a member who receives only twelve hundred dollars is not.

About what is the ratio of value given for the money which TWEED, SWEENY, CONNOLLY, and HALL have been spending in City affairs? In the report of the Joint Investigating Committee, we have estimates of experts as to the actual value of various items in the construction and furnishing the County Court-house which show a pleasing variety. In the matter of painting, $352,965 was paid for $89,500 work, or four dollars for one. In furniture and cabinet-work, $2,960,187 was paid for $308,551 of work, or ten for one. In plumbing and gas-fitting, (KEYSER'S account, in which most of the warrants were paid on forged indorsements,) the Ring paid $914,330 for $73,753, or thirteen to one. The lucky fugitive GARVEY got $1,937,545 for $70,000 work, or twenty-seven to one. Finally, the fictitious J. A. SMITH, whose name was forged by ten different Ring thieves and who is a mere cloak for TWEED and his confederates, was paid $841,900 for $13,978 in carpets, or at the rate of thirty-four to one. The average, as near as the experts could calculate, was about twelve dollars of pay to one of work or material.

GRACE GREENWOOD'S letter, which we publish this morning, is the first of a short series, in which she will describe her impressions of Mormon life. We remember nothing which, in the same space, gives the reader so simple and vivid a conception of this peculiar people. The gifted writer is without prejudice, a candid thinker, and an acute observer. Her letters cannot fail to be read with great interest.

NATHANIEL SANDS says that he has saved the City sixteen millions of dollars by negotiating fifteen millions worth of bonds, and pocketing a percentage of $75,000 for his trouble. This is the most brilliant financial achievement on record, and we do not wonder that the venerable PETER COOPER, while "dumbfounded" at SANDS' treachery, was forced to admit that he was one of the best financiers in the country. The strangest thing about the transaction is, that SANDS should have concealed from the Citizens' Association the great service he was rendering to the tax-payers by his financial cuteness. One would suppose that he would have taken the earliest opportunity to tell them all about it, and get them to pass resolutions thanking him for what he had done. But SANDS is a modest man, you see, and preferred not to let his right hand know what his left hand did—especially when the left hand was engaged in filching $75,000 of the people's money.

Mr. OLIVER P. LEICH has been nominated by the Republicans for Assemblyman in the Ninth District of Kings County, represented for several years past by JOHN C. JACOBS. Mr. LEICH is well known as a faithful and efficient Police Captain under the Metropolitan Police Commission, and was removed on party grounds when a Democratic Legislature gave Brooklyn a partisan Police. He is a capable, honest and reliable man, and should receive the votes of all opponents of the Brooklyn Ring.

The Tribune complains that TWEED'S bail bond is imperfect; or to use its own language, "this bond of Mr. TWEED'S seems imperfect." It wants to know why Mr. MURPHY did not perfect the instrument by making his "mark" as one of the bondsmen. One would think that the gentleman who volunteered to go bail for the greatest criminal of the age ought to be rather shy about talking of bail bonds. Perhaps Mr. MURPHY did not go bail for TWEED because his itching for notoriety is not so great as to lead him to do a wicked or foolish thing, for the sake of being talked about.

Some people seem born to be literally smothered by good fortune. Baron ROTHSCHILD'S late exploits on the turf are a surprising instance in point. When he won the Derby with Fazonius, and with the race a pot of money, the sporting world admired his great luck. Soon after, with Hannah, he won the Oaks, soon after again with the same mare the St. Leger, and now, astonishing to relate, with Corisande—named after Mr. DISRAELI'S radiant heroine—the Baron has won the Cesarewich. In other words, in one year he has carried off the four highest prizes of the turf. Such a dazzling series of successes is, we believe, quite without precedent, and, if a ROTHSCHILD can be spoiled by fortune, is enough to turn the coolest of heads.

To-Morrow's Oratorio Performance.

People who desire to hear Mr. SANTLEY, the great baritone, in music which will give him an opportunity to exhibit his remarkable gifts, will do well to attend the performance of "Elijah," to-morrow (Tuesday) evening, at Steinway Hall. Mr. SANTLEY is as great a singer as we have ever had in this country, and abroad he greatly distinguished himself in oratorio. Besides Mr. SANTLEY, the other members of Mr. DOLBY'S admirable company will appear—Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. and Mrs. PATEY, and Miss WYNNE. The New-York Harmonic Society form the chorus. The performance altogether will be an unusually fine one.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA KUKLUX.

The Appearance and Statements of Those in Custody in Columbia.

[From the Columbia Phœnix, Oct. 26.

We yesterday, by permission of Deputy BUTTS, paid a visit to the Kuklux confined in the County jail. Nineteen of the prisoners surrendered voluntarily to the Marshal. They belong to the small farmer class, none of them are more than thirty years of age, and several are not over eighteen. The faces indicate a low grade of intelligence, but there is not one really bad looking face in the party. In fact, they belong to a type made familiar to Northern soldiers in the squads so often easily captured toward the close of the war. Men who were driven like sheep into the Confederate army, and who, when safely penned up at Point Lookout, were in no hurry to be exchanged. It is doubtful if one of them ever owned a slave, or had an interest in the institution. They are a class whose physical characteristics may be found in any farming district of the North, but whose condition of social subordination is unknown. For generations they have been led by the "gentlemen" of their section, and have never been used to consider political acts from a moral stand-point, or think of a personal responsibility in such matters.

They speak with an astounding simplicity of acts which may send them to the penitentiary for years; they assert that they were forced to join the Klan or be whipped; they hope to see it suppressed, and peace and order secured in their county. They think that they ought not to be severely punished, while the leaders are suffered to escape. They profess a willingness to supply all necessary information to secure the arrest and conviction of the leaders.

One of the party said that he was willing to suffer an imprisonment if afterward he might be allowed to cultivate his farm in quietness, with neither Kuklux nor soldiers to trouble him. He said, however, that if discharged now he would be afraid to return to Spartanburg, unless protected by the presence of United States troops. In this all who had surrendered concurred. They were sure that, if the leaders were caught, convicted, and severely sentenced, Kuklurism would be killed off, but that there must not be a conviction of a few unknown and poor men and then stop.

From the interview the impression

NOTES OF TRAVEL.

SALT LAKE CITY, Tuesday, Oct. 17, 1871.

The more I see of this place the more I am impressed by the wonderful wild beauty of its surroundings. Each of two windows out of which I can look as I write is the frame of an enchanting picture—the green and fruitful valley, dotted with pleasant homes, the distant shining of water, brown plateau, dark cañons, mountains, bold and jagged and snow-crowned, with their bleak slopes softened here and there with lovely Autumn tints. The mountains are far less grand than those seen from Denver, but they are much nearer and are seldom obscured by mists. The cold season was inaugurated here by a furious wind, rain and snow-storm. The nights are almost wintry, but the mornings are brilliant, the days dazzling with keen continuous sunlight, and the sunsets gorgeous beyond description. On Saturday we drove up the valley, finding charming new views at every rise or turn. The whole region has a singularly foreign aspect, strange and ancient and solemn. In its strong contrasts of gardens and waste places, or busy life and silent desolation, of hoary mount and arid plain, it certainly, independent of Scripture nomenclature, reminds one of Palestine.

In coming in, we drove past the residence of President YOUNG, the "Lion House." In that house there are many mansions, that is, the various dwellings required for that vast extension arrangement, the imperial polygamic family, are mostly within one inclosure. The wall is high and broad, and gives a look of seclusion and dignity to the place. Within these walls are also the "tithing-houses," to which the Mormon farmers, gardeners and fruit-raisers bring yearly a tenth part of their produce. Merchants, manufacturers, mechanics, miners, &c., bring a tenth part of their income. This seems hard in some cases, but I doubt not that in most cases this contribution to the mother Church that brooded them so well in their callow days is cheerfully made, and I doubt not that under the direction and superintendence of their wise old leader, working men of the classes which here "most do congregate" do far better with their remaining nine-tenths than they could do elsewhere without such direction and superintendence. Adjoining the Lion House grounds is Temple Block. Here are, in addition to the foundation of the great Temple, the Tabernacle and the Endowment House. The Temple is to be built of native granite, which, by the way, is of a very fine quality, and is expected to cost several millions. The plan was given to BRIGHAM YOUNG in a vision—let us hope by the spirit of MICHAEL ANGELO or Sir CHRISTOPHER WREN—if agreeable to them. Architecturally the new Tabernacle is scarcely an improvement on the old, except in size. It is the plainest possible structure, but there is about it an air of grotesque grandeur, of originality and immensity. Acoustically it is thought a great success, but when not filled, there is an unpleasant reverberation, giving the effect of two distinct services in full blast. The other day, when one of the Mormon preachers was defending "the institution," and waxed bold and passionate, a clear, emphatic echo to each word seemed to come from somewhere away down below. The "Endowment House" is where the "plural marriages" all take place, with various forms and ceremonies. I am told by a gentleman who has access to the records that within the past year or two there has been a great and significant falling off in the business of this establishment. The numerical majority of women in the Territory is not so great as it once was—railroads and telegraphs, and discoveries of mines, travel and traffic, bring new men, new ideas, new light.

The theatre is a large and handsome building, a really wonderful structure, considering the time when it was built—before the prosperous days, when everything had to be done by the hardest—when all materials for building were fearfully expensive and difficult to obtain at any price—when, to use the strong language of a poetic friend, "the very stones cost blood." A Mormon gentleman tells me that the theatre was built more as a necessity than a luxury, to relieve the wearisome monotony and isolation of life out here. The leaders, sagacious as indulgent, saw that the people must have some relaxation and recreation. In those early days there was little money in the town, and people were allowed to pay at the door in grain, potatoes—almost any marketable commodity.

We attended service in the new Tabernacle on Sunday morning. The building was not filled—it takes fifteen thousand people to do that—but we had a tolerably good opportunity to observe the character and appearance of a Mormon assembly. President BRIGHAM YOUNG was in his usual place of honor, but did not preach—because of some ailment of the chest from which he is suffering. He is habitually pale of late, but nothing of anxiety or even nervousness is betrayed in his proud, set face. Neither is there anything of bluster or bravado in his manner and conversation. He has rather the look and air of a man who has met and overcome so much opposition, so many difficulties, that a cool and quiet confidence in his own particular star has become the habit of his mind. He would call it reliance upon God, but I believe there is in the man less fanaticism than fatalism, that magnificent conceit of imperial and magnetic natures, of all molders of systems, and masters and leaders of men.

The services in that prodigious and portentous Temple of this new, old faith—this strange conglomerate of Christianity, Judaism and Mohammedism—were quite simple, orderly and orthodox in character. There was prayer, choir-singing, music of the great organ, and a sermon from a text, followed by two volunteer discourses. The last was by Brother CANNON, editor of the Deseret News, one of the ablest speakers, debaters and writers among this peculiar people, and a very pleasant gentleman. It was noticeable that all the speakers on this occasion were on the defensive in regard to both the civil and religious character of their theocratic Government, and especially in regard to the institution of polygamy. There was a large attendance of Gentiles, and the present critical situation of the Mormon Church and its "beloved and venerable head" was touched upon with considerable spirit and feeling, but with, on the whole, caution and moderation. It is true they spoke of possible martrydom, of holding themselves ready to die for the faith delivered to the Saints, but nothing was said or intimated of actual rebellion against the authority of the United States. Indeed, there were strong professions of loyalty, and a law-abiding spirit. Mr. CANNON eulogized very eloquently the general character of the Mormons, claimed that before the influx of the Gentiles they were the most peaceful, contented, industrious, thrifty people on the continent—that they were still the most temperate, virtuous and inoffensive. He claimed that women were more respected and safer from insult among the Mormons than in any other community; that any woman could travel alone through Utah as securely and honorably as the fair lady of legend and song, who, though "rich and rare were the gems she wore," made a pilgrimage through Ireland, in its palmy and pious days. I am inclined to think the speaker in that last assertion spoke only truth. I believe, also, that Mormon husbands are generally kind and impartial in their treatment of their several wives. Otherwise, the condition would be too utterly intolerable for human woman-nature, however much sanctified and "sealed."

Though Mr. CANNON handled polygamy boldly and fully, he did not defend it on philosophical or physiological principles, or on grounds of political or domestic economy, but simply on a "thus-saith-the-Lord" presumption as a religious doctrine and duty, imposed by direct divine command. Here they stand entrenched. No arguments can move them, no logic or sentiment can touch them. Granted the divine authority and inspiration of JOSEPH SMITH and BRIGHAM YOUNG, the acceptance of polygamy follows as a matter of course. The speaker declared that the carrying out of this command was a cross to both the brethren and sisters, opposed as it was to the old tastes and prejudices, and especially repugnant to the unchastened impulses of woman's nature. I should think so.

You hear a good deal about that "cross," from both Mormon husbands and wives, but you only see the shadow of it in the faces of the women. I do not mean to intimate that they all look decidedly unhappy. There is rather in their faces a quiet, baffling, negative and abnegative expression, which certainly is as far from happy content as it is from desperate rebellion. Naturally, they are more alive to the outside pressure of public opinion, more sensitive to the obloquy and ostracism which their position provokes, than men. Patient and passive as they seem, they feel these things keenly—the more intelligent among them, at least—and though upheld by a sincere, devout faith in this strange delusion, they have toward strangers a peculiar air of reticence, of mistrust, almost of repulsion. I do not wonder at it—their hospitality and confidence have often been abused—they have been intruded upon by impertinent interviewers, and their reluctant answers to persistent questioning published abroad, with startling additions and dramatic embellishments. Those I have met appear to me, I must say, like good and gentle Christian women. They are singularly simple in dress, and modest in demeanor. What saddens me is their air of extreme quietude, retirement and repression. But for the children around them you would think some of them were women who had done with this world. I am told that the wives of even the highest Mormon dignitaries show little pride in their lords. It were perhaps difficult to feel much pride in the sixteenth part of a man, as men go. Even the first wife of a wealthy saint, betrays in her husband and household, they say, no exultant joy of possession. An investment in a Mormon heart and home must be rather uncertain stock for a woman. I am assured, though, that the second wife is seldom taken without the full consent of the first. Not only are the poor woman's religious faith and zeal appealed to, but her magnanimity toward her sister-woman out in the cold. It must be through great suffering that such heights of self-abnegation are reached. The crucifixion of the divine weakness of a loving woman's heart must be a severe process. But there is some sorry comfort in the thought that for these poor polygamous wives there is no wearing uncertainty, no feverish anxiety—that they are spared the bitterest pain of jealousy, the vague nightmare torture of suspicion, the grief and horror of the final discovery, the fierce sense of treachery and deception. They know the worst. Perhaps it is the "dead certainty" that gives them the peculiar cold, still look I have referred to. As to the Mormon men whom I have met, mostly leaders in the Church, and prominent, well-to-do-ottizens, I must say that they look remarkably care free and even jolly under the cross. VIRGIL, I believe, has somewhere the expression, "O three times and four times happy!" Well, that is the way they look.

It was easy to see by the discourses on Sunday, that there is, in the Church, something of solicitude, if not consternation, in regard to the situation of its President, arraigned for high crimes and misdemeanors before a hostile local tribunal, from which there is no appeal. But each speaker professed perfect reliance on that God who had once delivered them out of the hands of their enemies and led them across the Desert, and blessed them with peace and abundance in this pleasant land. As they spoke thus, strangely as it seemed to me, mingling faith with fatalism, and submission with resistance, and humility with arrogance, like the specious reasoners, practiced debaters and clever and confident managers of men that they are, the faces of their Mormon hearers glowed with a quiet satisfaction and a revival of the old fanatical fervor, which, I am told, had begun to die out of these people, perhaps with the incoming of new social influences and the increase of worldly prosperity and ease. It only needed a blast of persecution to fan the dying flame.

I marked in this audience many a rugged, manly head, and now and then a fine, strong face, honestly earnest and hungry for truth; but little indication of refinement or culture, or, except among the leaders, of decided characteristic worldly shrewdness. It was a great congregation of common people, rising slowly from an uncommonly low condition of life and intelligence. Utah is the poor man's paradise, and that is the best of it. The worst of it is that the trail of the polygamous serpent is over it all. Till a laborer gets rich enough to support two wives he can live as decently and virtuously here as in any tenement-house in New-York. None of the religious forms and observances short of those of the Endowment House, harm him much. Were it not for this one reproach, the Mayor and Common Council of Salt Lake City could stand up before the chiefs of Tammany and be bold—boasting that they rule over a city where among their own people there are no riots, no Rings, no burglaries, no drinking saloons, no gambling hells, no disorderly and infamous houses of any kind, no street beggars, no incendiaries, no prize-fighters—a city in which wages are high and taxes are low.

Yesterday we drove out into the country to take a look at some of the farms. They have a neat, thriving appearance, with good buildings, and show evidences of having produced fine crops. The irrigating ditches are everywhere beautifying, having more the look of natural streams than those in Colorado. All the farmhouses are surrounded with foliage. BRIGHAM YOUNG is a great lover of trees, and seems to make their culture a tenet of his religion. As the old lady said of "total depravity," "it's a good doctrine if well lived up to." Salt Lake fruit is not of the finest quality, as little attention has yet been paid to its cultivation, but it is grown in great abundance and considerable variety. It is a consolation while looking at these pleasant, homelike places, to remember that not more than one-tenth part of the people of Utah are polygamists. It is also something to know that even among the poorest the different wives do not live actually together. Each has a house, or half a house, or a set of apartments to herself.

Contrary to my impression, I find that the seceding faction called "Godbyites" did not make their new departure on the ground of opposition to polygamy, but to the dominion of the Church in civil affairs. It was a rebellion against the tithing system. The leader of the rebels is still a strong polygamist, but his house is divided against itself. His wives are loyal to BRIGHAM—all four of them. I am glad of it, for it proves that in sealing a wife to himself for time and eternity, no Grand Turk of them all can seal the mind and will and tongue of a woman!

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Scheme for Reforming the Civil Service—The Government Buildings in Chicago—New-Idria—McGarrahan—Colored Kuklux—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Civil Service Commission have so nearly reached a conclusion of their present labors that they hope to be able to present to the President during the week the outline of the system of rules and regulations upon which they have substantially agreed. The system will still require much elaboration in point of details. But the main features are nearly ready for the President's consideration. The four chief elements of the scheme thus far presented are: First, entrance into the civil service at the lowest point with competitive examinations at every stage: second, probation; third, promotion; fourth, no fixed tenure, which, in effect, leaves the present power of removal untouched, and gives that flexibility to the service which would be destroyed utterly if removal could only take place upon trial before a designated tribunal. It is believed that the liability to abuse to which the power of removal is now subject, will be obviated by removing the inducement to its improper exercise in so guarding the entrance to the civil service that the act of removal could by no possibility have any connection with the act of appointment. In other words, that whatever cause might secure a removal, it would carry no assurance of the appointment of a particular person as a consequence. The total absence of this assurance would necessarily remove all inducement to effect the removal. The scheme of exemptions contemplated removes a considerable list of officers from the operation of the system, but leaves the great mass of the service in the Post-office, Customs, Internal Revenue, General Treasury, Interior, State and other Departments subject to its operations. The maturing of such a plan is a notable event, and when fully presented to the public must awaken deep and widespread interest, for it is a long and bold step toward the overthrow of the present gigantic and evil system of political patronage.

THE CHICAGO GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.

It has been incorrectly stated that Judge BLODGETT, United States District Judge for the Southern District of Illinois, came here for the purpose of inducing the authorities to consent to the location of the new Government buildings in Chicago in a portion of the city which would draw business from its former site. Judge BLODGETT's mission here is principally for the purpose of restoring, as far as possible, the records of his court, many of the cases having been appealed, and duplicate papers in many instances being on file in the Department of Justice. As to new buildings, he joins with Senator TRUMBULL, who had a conference with Mr. MULLETT yesterday, in urging that in future construction the buildings be located together, on one square, so as to be isolated as possible, which feature is regarded to be even more important than fire-proof construction. At present it is the intention of the Secretary of the Treasury, in which he is sustained by Mr. MULLETT, to recommend the purchase entire square, near the site of the former Custom-house and Post-office, on which to erect all the Government buildings. Mr. MULLETT will probably visit Chicago this week in connection with this matter.

PERSONAL.

Secretary BOUTWELL returned last night. Among the arrivals in the city are Gov. BULLOCK, of Georgia, WILLIS GAYLORD, of New-York, Judge S. W. FULLER, of Chicago, and LEWIS N. TAPPAN, of Boston, who are at the Arlington. Mrs. Secretary FISH has returned to the city.

Attorney-General AKERMAN has returned to Washington. All the members of the Cabinet will be in Washington by Tuesday.

PANOCHE GRAND AGAIN.

The New-Idria-McGarrahan contest over the famous Panoche Grand Rancho has slumbered longer and more quietly than any one supposed when the cases of both sides were disallowed by the Secretary of the Interior last Summer. It is now rumored that the New-Idria Company will file a new application for a patent to the rancho in which the defects of the former application, as point ed out in the decision against it, shall be avoided. If it be true that some of the principals in the Company are foreigners, as has been stated, it is supposed the stock will turn up in the hands of new apparent owners, who will be able to prove American citizenship as the law provides. It is understood that MCGARRAHAN will carry his case again before Congress, trusting in the hopes which the favorable action of the House awakened last Winter.

MR. STOKES' DIFFICULTY.

One of the laws which Col. STOKES has violated, and for which he is likely to be held answerable, in addition to the charge of conspiracy to defraud, is that statute passed in 1870, which prohibits any departmental officer of a certain grade, or any member of Congress from prosecuting claims against the Government for a period of two years after they vacate their offices.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

CONSULAR RECOGNITIONS.

The President has recognized the following persons as Consular officers for the German Empire: Johannes Roesing, Consul-General at New-York; Friedrich Wilhelm Zach, Consul at New-York; E. Stammann, Vice-Consul at New-York; Warner Dresel, Consul at Baltimore; Johann Heinrich Goesler, Consul at Boston; Charles Otto Witte, Consul at Charleston; Heinrich Claussenius, Consul at Chicago; Adolph Seinker, Consul at Cincinnati; August Wiedermann, Consul at Detroit; Johann Wilhelm Jackusch, Consul at Galveston; Carl Theodor Ferdinand Schwartz, Consul at Louisville; L. von Baumbach, Consul at Milwaukee; Johannus Kruttschmitt, Consul at New-Orleans; Heinrich Moeser, Consul at Pittsburg; Friedrich Wilhelm Hanewinckel, Consul at Richmond; Robert Barth, Consul at St. Louis; Ferdinand Wellins, Consul at St. Paul; Carl A. C. Duisenberg, Consul at San Francisco; Jacob Ranois, Consul at Savannah. The following-named persons have been recognized by the President as Vice-Consuls of Sweden and Norway: Hagborth Sahlguard, Vice-Consul at St. Paul, and Peter Suanse, Vice-Consul at Chicago. John F. Cooke has been recognized by the President as Vice-Consul of Her Brittanic Majesty at St. Louis.

GOLD SALES FOR NOVEMPER.

The Secretary of the Treasury has authorized the Assistant Treasurer at New-York to purchase $1,000,000 of bonds on each Wednesday in the month of November, or $5,000.000 in all, and to sell $1,000,000 of coin on the first, third and fifth Thursdays, and $2,000.000 each on the second and fourth Thursdays, or $7,000,000 in all.

THE SOCIAL EVIL.

At the regular reunion of the Woman's Club of this city, last night, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted after general discussion on the moral, social, religious and political sides of the question:

Whereas, at every step of our labors for the prevention and cure of the social evil, we find legal, political, judicial, and Executive obstacles blocking our way, therefore,

Resolved, that we believe the chief and radical remedy for the social evil, lies in the political enfranchisement and thence personal emancipation of woman.

Martial Law in Texas—Reported Statement by Gen. Reynolds.

A special telegram from Austin, Texas, to the Houston Times, dated Oct. 21, gives the following:

"Your correspondent has just seen Gen. REYNOLDS, who says that he went to Groesbeck to see if the strong arm of the militia would be necessary to enforce the law. He found it was not, and now returns. He speaks of the good citizens as anxious to maintain the dignity of the law. He says that but few troops will be retained there, as there is no necessity for them. In reply to a question as to whether a tax levied by DAVIS should be paid, he said the country was, in fact, under martial law, and that an injunction to restrain the collection of the tax would be simply invalid while the law is in force. If there is redress in the Courts, it must come hereafter, as reclamation, as it cannot now be applied as a remedy. He advised the peaceable payment of the fines and taxes imposed in order to relieve themselves of the present incubus. He reports that business has been resumed, and that everything is quiet and orderly. Altogether, the citizens feel that they now have a responsible witness to testify in their behalf, and are not left to the minions of DAVIS to lie and slander them to accomplish their unholy purposes. Gen. REYNOLDS' visit will result in good to the whole State."

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis of Events and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—7 P.M.—The highest barometer is central over Maryland, with northwesterly winds in New-England and New-York; easterly winds in the Southern States, and clear weather very generally in the Atlantic States. The disturbance Saturday afternoon west of the Mississippi is apparently now in Iowa, with brisk southerly winds from Missouri to Wisconsin. South-east winds, with cloud, are reported from Louisiana, and brisk north-east winds in Southern Florida.

PROBABILITIES.

Brisk southerly winds are probable for to-night on Lake Michigan, and easterly winds on Lake Superior, followed by northerly winds on Monday; south-easterly winds, with threatening weather, continue on the Gulf coast, and north-easterly winds, with increasing cloudiness, in the South Atlantic States. The barometer will probably rise in New-England, with northerly winds and clear weather. Cautionary signals are ordered at Grand Haven, Chicago and Milwaukee.

THE KNIFE AND PISTOL.

Stabbing Affray in Brooklyn.

During a free fight in the tenement-house No. 360 First-street, Williamsburg, yesterday, CHARLES DENNE twice stabbed HENRY VANDERHOFF in the back, but the wounds were slight.

Probable Murder.

JAMES LAMB, of No. 441 East Eleventh-street, was brought to the Seventeenth Precinct Station-house, last night, suffering from a severe stab wound under the left shoulder-blade. He stated that he quarreled with a man in East Twelfth-street, who plunged a knife into him and then fled. LAMB refused to give the name of his assailant. Dr. MACLAY examined the wound and pronounced it dangerous, and sent him to Bellevue Hospital.

A Man Killed by a Policeman in Jersey City.

Shortly after midnight, yesterday morning, Officer HARNED, of the Third Jersey City Precinct, while pursuing a man who had thrown a stone into a saloon, in which the officer and others were drinking a few moments before, fired three shots from his revolver after the fugitive, one of which accidentally took effect in the body of HENRY NOLTE, who was with the officer. NOLTE died of his injuries at 10 o'clock last night. The officer has been arrested.

Probably Fatal Affray.

While standing on the corner of Ridge and Division streets, at an early hour yesterday morning, DENNIS MCCARTHY, of No. 334 Front-street, and JOHN SMITH, of No. 9 Ridge-street, who were both intoxicated, became involved in a quarrel, during which SMITH drew a pocket-knife and stabbed MCCARTHY in the back, inflicting a dangerous wound. The injured man was removed to his home, where he now lies in a precarious condition. The Coroner was notified to take his ante-mortem statement. The Police are looking after SMITH, who made his escape after the affray.

Encounter Between Citizens and Policemen.

JOHN SMITH, an intoxicated sailor, was arrested in Second-street, Williamsburg, yesterday forenoon, by Officer KELLY, but before the officer and his prisoner reached the Fourth-street Station-house a desperate conflict occurred, SMITH, who is a powerful man, took his captor by surprise, and knocked him down, rolling him in the gutter and kicking him in a most brutal manner. His efforts were seconded by an excited crowd of men and boys and women, the latter pulling the officer's hair out of his head in bunches. In the conflict the officer broke a small club over SMITH's head, but it appeared to have but very little effect on him. KELLY was rescued by Officer ABBOTT, who found him lying prostrate covered with blood. SMITH was secured and locked up.

More Stabbing Affrays.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night, PATRICK O'NEIL and JAMES COOGAN, both residing at No. 369 First-avenue, quarrelled at their residence, when COOGAN drew a knife and stabbed O'NEIL in the side. The injured man was attended by Dr. COOPER, who pronounced the wound not serious.

ALEXANDER COLLINS and PETER MCCARTHY, while intoxicated, yesterday, became engaged in a quarrel on the corner of Twenty-ninth-street and Third-avenue, during which COLLINS drew a knife and stabbed MCCARTHY in the left jaw, inflicting a severe wound. Both parties were arrested and locked up in the Twenty-first Precinct Station-house.

Charity Among Young Girls.

The Girls' Lodging-house, sustained by the Children's Aid Society, one of the most useful charities in the City, has been recently placed in the new and commodious building at No. 27 St. Mark's-place. Here drift in great numbers of the floating homeless girls of the City. Some brought by the Police, some directed hither by benevolent citizens, and some finding of themselves their way to the house. They are a peculiarly poor and unfortunate class, exposed to many temptations. In the house they are taught house-work, or the use of the sewing-machine, and are dispatched as rapidly as possible to places. During the past month over 100 applied for admission, and all have been supplied with situations. Besides these, 174 were admitted to the Sewing-machine School, during the month, and have learned the use of the machine. Though entering utterly destitute, they go forth with a trade with which they can earn from $1 to $2 a day. It is earnestly requested that all our citizens meeting with young girls, begging and in a state of destitution, in the streets, would send them at once to this benevolent institution. It should be understood, however, that young girls only are received and not women of mature years. It is hoped that the benevolent ladies of the City will often visit this Lodging-house.

The Recent Drouth and the Fires.

From the Toronto Globe, Oct. 23.

By the courtesy of Prof. KINGSTON we have been supplied with the statistics of the rain-fall and the melted snow in Toronto during the past part of 1871, and the average for the last twenty-six years. Up to June the fall was, for 1871, 3.685 inches more than the average of the last quarter of a century for the same months. The total deficiency for these three months is thus 4.787 inches. This is enormous; and any one can understand how the absence of such an amount of moisture would make houses a mere collection of combustible material, and how if a fire once got any head at all it would scarcely be possible to stay its progress.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

During the past week the volume of business transacted at the Exchange has been larger than at any time thus far this season for a corresponding period. Two very important sales have taken place, namely: The auction connected with the disposition of the Spofford estate, conducted by E. H. LUDLOW & Co., on Tuesday, and the sale of property on Washington Heights, belonging to the Chittenden estate, made by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., on Thursday. Both transactions attracted a large number of buyers and others interested in real estate, and both were attended with success, the latter to a remarkable degree. The market generally during the week has been more active than usual, and closed firm. In suburban sales, owing to unpropitious weather, but little if anything has been accomplished. Brooklyn real estate continues at a deadlock, but with better prospects for the future. In New-Jersey and Westchester realty brokers report considerable activity, and in fact, the general tone of business is better for the season of the year than we had reason to expect would be the case. The total sales of City real estate at the Exchange for the week ending with Saturday, Oct. 28, amounts to $1,342,305 as against the sum of $352,675, for the previous week, a large increase and a very large average.

THIS WEEK'S LIST OF SALES.

During the present week, although with the exception of the sale of property belonging to the Lockwood estate by S. DINGEE on Thursday, no auction of special interest is to occur, a large variety of real estate will be offered in small lots, at the Exchange, from day to day. Several suburban auctions are also announced. The following is a list of the transactions projected, at which the realty referred to will be offered for sale by the auctioneers respectively named:

Monday, Oct. 30.

LUDLOW & Co., at the Exchange, at public auction, Brooklyn real estate as follows: Premises No. 301 Columbia-street, east side, 45 feet north of Woodhull-street, embracing a four-story and basement brick store and dwelling, with lot in size 20 by 80; also premises No. 140 Sackett-street, south side, 115 east of Columbia-street, comprising a three-story high-stoop brick house, with lot in size 19.10 by 100.

By A. D. MELLICK, JR. & BRO., at Norwood, N. J., on the line of the Northern Railroad, 900 choice villa plots, eligibly located and within a few minutes walk of the railway station; sale on the premises at 1 P. M. TO THE HOLDERS OF THE SEVERAL CLASSES OF BONDS OF THE JACKSON, LANSING AND SAGINAW RAILROAD COMPANY.

Whereas, By an agreement between the Michigan Central and the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw Railroad Companies, the road of the last-named Company is to be worked by the Michigan Central in future; and by the terms of that agreement, and for the purpose of extending the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw Road northerly, a new and consolidated mortgage is to be put upon the road for such an amount as will provide both a sufficient fund for the extension of the road as far north as the Straits of Mackinac, and also for the exchange of all outstanding bonds under previous mortgages, for the bonds under the new mortgage of a similar kind; that, by the terms of the agreement, as now to be done under the laws of Michigan, the Michigan Central Railroad Company may make its own bonds, to be secured by the same mortgage as the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw, and issue the same in lieu of those of the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw, if this exchange is to be made. That whether it does so or not will depend upon the action of those who hold the several classes of bonds already issued under the several mortgages upon the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw Road; and if the holders of these bonds shall elect to exchange them for the bonds of the Michigan Central, secured by a single first mortgage on the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw, then it will issue its own bonds for the extension of the road, and also for exchange for the outstanding bonds of the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw Railroad Company, and otherwise not; and in order that it may determine whether it will or will not issue its own bonds under said mortgage, it is necessary that the holders shall signify, at an early day, their disposition in the matter.

The bonds of the Michigan Central Railroad Company, to be issued, will be in sums of one thousand dollars each, and dated Nov. 1, 1871, payable in twenty-five years, interest at eight per cent., free of Government tax, payable semi-annually at its office in Boston.

When exchange is made, it will be at par, interest to be adjusted.

Therefore, all holders of the bonds of the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw Railroad Company desirous of making the exchange as herein provided, will please notify ISAAC LIVERMORE, Treasurer of the Michigan Central Railroad Company, at Boston, on or before the 10th day of December, 1871.

Denunciations of Corruption in High Places.

Special Services in Some of the Churches—Anniversary of the John-Street M. E. Church—Rev. Dr. Joseph P. Thompson's Farewell.

Political Corruption—Discourse by Rev. D. McAllister in the First Reformed Presbyterian Church.

Last evening, Rev. D. McAllister, General Secretary of the National Association of the Amendment of the Constitution, preached in the First Reformed Presbyterian Church on "The Cause and Cure of Political Corruption," taking for his text the tenth, eleventh and twelfth verses of the fifty-sixth Psalm. He spoke substantially as follows:

This portion of the Divine word is one among many which retere to Kings and Judges in the olden time, but it applies just as well to a republican form of government, and commands that the ruling power be exercised in the fear of God. In connection with this command we have threatenings that we will perish by the way; we incur the displeasure of the King of Kings. This displeasure is expressed in the form of national calamities. One of these is the corroding of political corruption as it destroys the vitals of the nation. We are suffering in this country under this form of national judgment. We find all around us fearful corruptions. A man said to the speaker, that the fact of a person holding office under Government meant that he was a demagogue or a scoundrel. This statement might be exaggerated, but evidence would bear out this conclusion. Now, we should seek the cause, in order that we may apply the remedy. Many things have been proposed of late for remedies. Some say that Republicanism is a failure, but we do not believe it. Political corruption is moral corruption, and we will find the cause in some moral thing. There is but one sufficient cause for all this corruption, and that is the failure of our nation to found and administer its government on religious principles. This nation has failed to do this, and until it does, we will have political corruption. The distinction is drawn between nation and Government. The first is the moral being of a country, and the second is the agent of the nation in its control. The nation is bound to establish and maintain its Government on moral principles. The nation is a moral being, and is capable of being influenced by moral motives. We have a large national debt, for which the nation is accountable, if it remains unpaid five hundred years from now. This shows that it is a moral being. The moral law governing the nation is God's law. We should, therefore, acknowledge Him. The Bible is the revelation of God's law, and we should look to it for our guide. It is asked by some men, what would you think of a business company which acknowledged God in its charter? We claim that God should be recognized by corporations as well as individuals. No business association can take away life, but Government can, and therefore it is different from all business corporations. None deny the right of Government to punish and protect. Here then we have a nation in moral relations to God and bound to acknowledge Him. In order to do its duty fully the nation must establish itself on a religious basis. Government, as the agent, must carry on the work and must incorporate in its constitution an acknowledgment of God's authority. Having power lodged in its hands the next thing is to exercise this power in accordance with God's law. The Bible is the foundation of national legislation and when a State administers its government in accordance with it it is founded on pure principles. When this country was founded this principle was acknowledged. In the Declaration of Independence this principle was recognized, but when the Convention assembled to frame a constitution it sat five weeks before the proceedings were opened with prayer, at last Benjamin Franklin called attention to the fact and asked that prayer be offered daily. The motion which Franklin offered was defeated by an adjournment, for the Convention, except two or three individuals, thought prayer was unnecessary. The Constitution was framed without any recognition of Divine Providence. One reason for this was perhaps the close relations we were placed in with France. The views of the framers of the Government were that it was best for us to have as little to do with God, as a nation, as possible. Luther Martin, a member of the Convention, says that the clause which forbade the exaction of a religious test from candidates for office was adopted by a large majority who were in favor of establishing the Government outside religious principles. About nine years after we entered into a treaty with Morocco, and that treaty expressly states that this Government is not founded on Christian principles. Judge Story says the Jew, Mohammedan or infidel can find shelter here, finding nothing in the Government to interfere with their creed. The effect of this absence of recognition of God's law is seen in the political corruption around us; office-holders lose all moral restraint when entering public life. Good men become corrupted just as soon as they get into office. Our politicians are corrupted because we do not recognize God in the foundation of Government. When we set up irresponsible persons, it shows to all men that they may act regardless of any moral restraint. The speaker was well persuaded that if Governments would acknowledge God, it might not prevent corruption entirely, but it would go a great way toward correcting it. It will not do to have it foisted into the Constitution without the consent of the people. Mere forms of words will not do. If it had been inserted at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, it would have been better; for then each state had a predominating religious influence. Our forefathers made a sad mistake when they omitted this act. Now, if it can be inserted in the Constitution, it will have a good effect. In having this acknowledgment incorporated in the Constitution, we will have a moral effect which will be marked at once. We have left this question too long, and instead of electing Christian men for office, we find that the electors choose the worst class of men to the highest office in the land. The pagan and infidel is just as eligible to office as the more sincere Christian. Let us then say that we will have none but God-fearing men to rule over us, and pass laws to that effect. The Revised Statutes regulate the qualifications of witnesses. Infidels who do not believe in God cannot be witnesses in any case. These qualifications are demanded of witnesses, yet an infidel is declared by State and Federal enactments to be qualified for the highest office in the land. In conclusion, the speaker urged that the movement to secure the recognition of God in the Constitution be agitated until it was incorporated therein. Then we would be able to prevent the election to office of men who were notoriously corrupt.

Rev. Theo. L. Cuyler on the Present Condition of Municipal Affairs.

In the Lafayette-avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, last night, the pastor, Rev. Theo. L. Cuyler, preached a sermon on political corruption. There is no place, he said, where conscience is more needed than in public affairs, and in our own country at this time,—a conscience that shall make men, seeing that the destinies of the land are in the hands of those who rule the ballot-box, excuse their solemn duties as in the presence of God. As a stream seldom goes higher than its source we must see to it that the purifying elements of religion and education are carried among the masses. The representative men will reflect the character of the constituency. If the community sets up a Morrissey, or a Tweed to be its leader, it is simply because they represent the average sentiment, the average morality, and reflect the public feeling for those that chose them. For the present lamentable condition of affairs in New-York and Brooklyn, it is useless to hold universal suffrage responsible, and declaim against it. You might as well contend against the law of gravitation. Universal suffrage is part of our being, and by it we must stand or fall. It is in our hands to make it, if we so determine, the greatest of blessings, or, forgetting and failing to perform our duty, we may permit power to gravitate into the hands of the ignorant, and find ourselves in consequence living under a million tyrants. The duty of the hour lies in the combination of honest men against the thieves.

An Appeal for Chicago Churches.

Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, the rector of St. James Church, Chicago, spoke yesterday morning at St. Thomas' Church on the late calamity in Chicago, especially as it affects the interest of the Episcopal Church. The preacher said, "Would it not be a great thing if I could telegraph to my parish that St. Thomas' Church pledged $10,000, one-fourth of what is required to rebuild St. James' Church in Chicago." At the close of the address Dr. Morgan gave notice that in the course of this week the parish would be called upon for this object. After the service one gentleman sent in his name for $1,000.

John-Street Methodist Church—Celebration of the One Hundred and Third Anniversary.

Yesterday the one hundred and third anniversary of the dedication of the John-street Methodist Church was celebrated with appropriate services, which commenced with a love feast at 9 A. M., presided over by Rev. J. B. Merwin. The regular morning services commenced at 10½. The edifice was filled to overflowing, many of those who formerly worshiped in the old church, but had removed from the neighborhood, being present. On the platform were the pastor of the church, Rev. Jesse T. Peck, Rev. W. H. Dyckman, the presiding Elder, Rev. J. B. Merwin and others. The sermon was preached by Rev. Jesse T. Peck. One hundred and three years ago, he said, the same theology was taught in this church that is taught today. Supposing that, instead of Emerury for a teacher, they had had Ralph Waldo Emerson. Instead of the Methodist Church standing, as it does today, firmer than ever, the teachings of these moon-struck philosophers would have destroyed it. We should have had nothing but polished abstractions, in place of the sound old theology which teaches us to worship God as the creator of all things.

After the sermon a collection was taken up, to aid in paying off the liabilities of the church, amounting to $2,500. Rev. Mr. Dyckman, Rev. Mr. Peck and wife, Presiding Elder Merwin and several others were made life members.

In the afternoon there was a reunion of the old pastors and members of the church; in the evening a reunion prayer-meeting, and a sermon by Rev. Thos. Guard, of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference.

Rev. Dr. Prentiss on the Wrongs Inflicted by the Ring—What Will Follow if those Wrongs are not Redressed.

Rev. Dr. Prentiss, of the Church of the Covenant, Park-avenue, preached a telling sermon on the crisis, yesterday morning. The doctor is a man of cool, dispassionate judgment, not given to preaching on politics, and his words will have weight in many quarters.

Dr. Prentiss preached from the appropriate text from Ecclesiastes, third chapter, seventh verse: "There is a time to keep silence and a time to speak." He commenced by referring to the great calamities in Chicago and the scattered communities of Michigan and Wisconsin, and proceeded to show that there were even greater public evils than these, and the duty of the Christian minister as a faithful watchman in such a crisis was to stand up for the principles of truth and justice. They are evils, he said, which consume not the property of the community but its self-respect, its honor; which pollute its moral atmosphere, drug its conscience, infuse poison into its veins, paralyze its will, cover it with shame, trample its manhood in the dust and render it a reproach and bye-word through the world. An evil of this deadly sort is the very one under which this City is groaning; so stupendous that we should obeaply purchase exemption from it, if in no other way, by such a conflagration as has laid Chicago in ruins, or such a visitation of the sword as lately befell Paris. New-York is the first City of the nation, its Commercial Metropolis, a principal centre of its most important religious, social, literary, financial and political forces; its daily and weekly Press is a miracle of energy and enterprise and influence; it is eminently a representative City; its voice has always been potential in public affairs and has sounded out into other countries more widely and with more effect than any other city on the Continent. And yet it happens on evidence of carefully-attested facts and official documents that the Government of New-York for years now has been largely wielded in the interest of a gigantic system of public theft, swindling, fraud and forgery. It is enough to make the world stand aghast. The boldness and assurance with which these crimes have been committed are even more alarming as symptoms, as they show the consciousness of immunity and of power to carry out these schemes of iniquity. The men who have conspired to rule and ruin our City have defied assault. They have laid their plans with so much skill; they have adjusted the laws so perfectly to the furtherance of their designs; they have surrounded themselves, like the robber chiefs of the Dark Ages, with such troops of dependents; they are so sure the ballot-box is on their side, or that they can make it so; they have such boundless faith in the efficacy of money to bribe to silence, if not co-operation, political foes as well as friends, that they have counted on immunity in carrying out still larger schemes of iniquity. If their confidence is well founded, if this trouble passes over, and they are left unpunished in possession of their stolen millions, if especially they shall remain or again be elected to power in spite of the revelation of their crimes, then I am assured we are on the era of scenes never witnessed in this country before; scenes as much out of the line of ordinary civil events as the colossal frauds committed by these men are out of the line of ordinary theft and dishonesty. For it is certain that such a catastrophe would indicate a fatal defect in our institutions, so far at least as the great cities of the country are concerned, or else a fatal apathy on the part of the people which would forebode fierce anarchy and conflict in the future. On this account the nation and the civilized world are watching us in this momentous crisis. This is not the place to go into the details of these crimes. If they appeared in fiction one should regard them as tales of Oriental fancy. They are on a scale of magnificence that would startle Emperors and Kings bent on robbing their subjects. What if this gangrene should spread, as it has long been threatening to do, throughout the body politic? We must not forget that moral evils of the sort we are considering, when once they have reached a certain degree of violence and power, tend to spread like a conflagration or a pestilence; they stimulate the worst passions of society; they grow strong by what they feed on; they are eager to protect themselves by drawing the greatest possible numbers into complicity with them. Interest, fear, hatred, ambition, all urge them on, and serve to swell their ranks. Consider what fatal power there is in the example of successful wrong-doing. Who can estimate the baleful influence of the spectacle of prosperous fraud rolling in wealth, luxury and power, bidding defiance to law, and laughing at the old-fashioned notions of conscience and religion. After alluding to the causes of this startling phenomenon of high-handed wickedness, the sermon closed with an appeal, especially to young men, to devote themselves to the service of society as well as of religion, or rather to consecrate themselves to the service of religion through a better service of society.

Rev. Dr. Thompson's Farewell Sermon—His Acknowledgment of the Gift of $55,000 from His Congregation.

In the Broadway Tabernacle Church, Rev. Dr. Thompson preached, yesterday morning, his farewell sermon. His discourse was founded on these words: "I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all His people." The preacher said: I feel it to be a religious duty as well as a personal privilege here upon the Lord's Day, and in the Lord's house, and as in the face of all the world, with devout thanksgiving to Almighty God, and with overwhelming gratitude to you, my people, to testify of the munificence—the magnificence—of the provision which you have made for my support and comfort to the end of my days. What am I, or what is my work, that you should love and cherish me after this sort? I receive your bounty with a humility as deep as the gratitude with which I acknowledge it. I cannot appropriate it to myself as a personal favor, though your generosity has been pleased to convey it under that form. Not anything in me, but that which is in you, is honored and illustrated by this gift. Your loving consideration for the office of pastor in the Church of Christ, your generous appreciation of the ministry which Christ hath ordained, your loyal consecration to Christ himself as the head of the Church, these are the sentiments which have found expression in a gift beyond precedent at once in its nobleness and in its tenderness. Not because I have lived among you for almost a generation, but because I have been you pastor, not that I may live without temporal anxiety in the future, but that I may be enabled to devote such strength as God shall preserve to me unto his glory—for these highest, best of Christian motives it is that you have so honored yourselves in honoring your now disabled and retiring servant.

Opening of St. Barnabas' Chapel, Brooklyn.

The opening services of the new chapel of St. Barnabas, Bushwick-avenue and Kossuth-place, Brooklyn, were held yesterday morning. There was a large congregation present. The new chapel is a very pretty frame building, about 90 by 35 feet, of the Gothic style of architecture, and will seat about 400 persons. The sermon was preached by Right Rev. A. N. Littlejohn.

Bishop Littlejohn, after his sermon, referred to the financial condition of the new church. There had been no special services that day, for the reason that the church was not out of debt, and it could not be consecrated until it was. There was a funded debt of ten thousand dollars, and also a floating debt of about seven thousand dollars, and it is laid with the people to pay them off. Liberal subscriptions were made by the congregation. The Holy Communion was administered, and the services were then brought to a close. At 8 o'clock in the afternoon there was a special Sunday-school service, and in the evening Rev. Dr. Hall, of Trinity Church, preached the sermon.

New-York City Church Extension and Missionary Society.

A public meeting of the New-York City Church Extension and Missionary Society of the M. E. Church was held, last evening, in the Alanson M. E. Church, Norfolk-street, near Grand. Mr. A. V. Stout presided, and opened the meeting with prayer. Addresses were made by Rev. George Hollis and Rev. Wm. H. Boole.

The Williamsburg Mormons.

At the Mormon place of meeting, Grand-street, Williamsburg, yesterday, Elder Searles appealed to God to save the Prophet Brigham Young, and the Saints, and throw their enemies into confusion. Other Elders made stirring appeals to the congregation, urging them to continue steadfast in the faith and be prepared to fight for it if they were so directed by God and his Prophet.

The "Street" Boys' Meetings.

The Children's Aid Society has recommenced the Sunday evening meetings with the street boys, to be continued throughout the Winter. The gentlemen who conduct these meetings have met with great encouragemen in their labors. The services were conducted last night by Mr. M. Dupoy, in the absence of the regular alternate, Mr. Howard Potter. The boys—newsboys, boot-blacks, baggage "smashers," and peddlers—presented a somewhat grotesque but very interesting appearance as they joined in the singing and listened to the speakers. Mr. J. O. Hoyt delivered an excellent address on "flowers," which delighted the poor boys very much.

A COLORED MARTYR.

Oration by Rev. Henry H. Garnett—Colored Men Warned Against Their Political Enemies—The Men They Should Support.

An oration upon the life and character of Prof. Octavius V. Catto, of Philadelphia, who was killed in the riots at the recent election in that city, was delivered, last night, at the Shiloh Presbyterian Church, (colored,) corner of Marion and Prince streets, by Rev. Henry Highland Garnett.

Mr. Garnett said that but a few days ago an accomplished scholar, a brave soldier and a good citizen, was stricken down in the streets of Philadelphia, for no other crime than that he had attempted to exercise his right to vote after his own choice. While the people there assembled were filled with mingled sorrow and indignation, Octavius V. Catto was lying in an early grave, his body rent with gaping wounds. He was sleeping in death, but the principles for which he died still live and are growing. He was slain because like many of his race, he would not affiliate with corrupt politicians. Their bribes and threats having failed they resorted to the cowardly weapon of the assassin. The death of Catto had not lost a man from the loyal ranks; the colored people were driven by the deed to take a firmer stand by the side of law-abiding people. They who killed him were of those who were responsible for all the wrongs that have been done the colored race during the past two hundred years. Mr. Garnett compared the rioters in Philadelphia to the Kuklux of the South. He said all color distinction must be done away with. Catto, he said, was born in Charleston, S. C., Feb. 22, 1839, came to Philadelphia with his father when he was seven years old, received his education there, and taught in the Philadelphia Institute for Colored Youth; he had been Superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction in Columbia; was a Major of Militia in Philadelphia, and died while in the discharge of his duty. He called upon the colored young men of New-York to weigh well their action; the party that had prompted the assassination of Catto were the unfailing enemies of their race, no matter what new departures they might take, and the only course for colored men was to stand by the noble band of patriots who had destroyed slavery. He called upon them to pledge by the tomb of dead Catto an endless war against those whose policy had killed him. An appeal for aid for the sufferers by the Chicago and Western fires was made, and a collection taken up.

The Russian Fleet Still at Sea.

The dispatch from the American Consul at Funchal, in the Island of Madeira, dated Oct. 6, wherein he states that the Russian Squadron, with the Grand Duke Alexis aboard, was in that harbor at the time of his writing, and that they would not sail until the 9th, has created the greatest disappointment, not alone among the gentlemen who have made such extensive preparations to receive him, but among the community generally. If the Grand Duke sailed from Madeira on the 9th of October, he must have escaped the heavy westerly gales which have raged in the North Atlantic for the past ten days. The course of the Russian Squadron from Madeira to New-York would run it into the low latitudes, where, at this season of the year, south, south-east, and other favorable winds prevail. In the meantime the United States squadron of reception lies at its anchorage inside the Bar at Sandy Hook, anxiously awaiting His Imperial Highness' arrival, while the United States steamer Tallapoosa cruises outside during the day, in order that the American Admiral may not be taken unawares and allow the Russian Admiral to come upon him and prevent the courtesy of the first salute intended by Vice-Admiral Rowan. The Russian Squadron cannot be very far from the American shore, and at any moment during the coming week we may expect to hear of its arrival off Sandy Hook. It is somewhat strange that notwithstanding preparations on an extensive scale are being made to welcome the Grand Duke in Philadelphia and Baltimore as he passes through those cities en route for Washington, no steps have been taken in the national capital to give the son of the Czar a fitting reception while on a visit to the Chief Magistrate of the United States.

The Tobacco Difficulty.

As may be seen by our Havana letter of the 16th October, published in Saturday's Times, the subject of tobacco intended for American shipment was creating quite an excitement. We are informed from a source worthy of credit that the volunteers in the service of the Spanish Government threatened to throw overboard all the tobacco on the wharves awaiting transportation to the United States. American buyers are somewhat anxious about future shipments.

Catherine Eger, a German woman, residing at No. 69 Lillie-street, Newark, attempted to commit suicide by cutting her throat with a razor yesterday afternoon. Officer Bayer, who was called immediately upon the discovery by her friends, summoned a physician and her life was saved.
